Munson's System of Phonography

THE DICTIONARY OF PRACTICAL PHONOGRAPHY

GIVING THE BEST PHONOGRAPHIC FORMS FOR THE WORDS OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE (SIXTY THOUSAND), AND FOR OVER FIVE THOUSAND PROPER NAMES ; ALSO ILLUSTRATING THE PRINCIPLES OF PHRASE-
WRITING ; ALTOGETHER REPRESENTING A
MUCH LARGER NUMBER OF WORDS
THAN ANY PREVIOUS SHORT-HAND DICTIONARY

PREFACE TO THE REVISED EDITION.

The plan of this revision of "The Dictionary of Practical Phonography" is as follows: The "Appendix of Revised Outlines," commencing at page 329, is intended to present all words whose outlines, owing to recent modifications of the system, as introduced in the new text-books, "The Art of Phonography" and "A Shorter Course in Munson Phonography," are now written differently from the outlines given in the original edition of the Dictionary, together with the outlines of new and other words that did not appear in the former edition. The Phonographic forms of previous editions, which are found in the first 328 pages of the book, are in accordance with the instructions of the author's first text-book, "The Complete Phonographer," while the forms of the Appendix are in accordance with the instructions given in both of the later text-books above mentioned.

As there are some teachers of phonography who adhere to "The Complete Phonographer," in training pupils to write shorthand, it naturally follows that there are quite a number of phonographers who write Munson phonography according to the old style. Such writers will have no need for the Appendix, and will consult only the original part of the Dictionary; and none but learners of the system as taught in the two newer text-books will have occasion to refer to the Appendix.

The manner in which the Dictionary as revised is to be used is as follows: If the phonographer wishes to ascertain the author's latest form for a particular word, he will first look for it in the Appendix. If the word is not found there, it means that its correct outline is the old one, and will be found by looking up the word in the main body of the Dictionary. To illustrate, if the outline of hardy is desired, by turning to page 340 in the Appendix it will be found to be Toid-R^1-D; and if the outline of hard is sought for, on referring to the Appendix the word will not be found there, but in the body of the Dictionary, at page 117, the correct form will be found to be Hrd^1.

Sometimes two forms are given for a word with or between, as on page 351, "Milliner, M-L^3-Nr or Ml^3-Nr," and on page 340, "Hall, Hl^1 or Toid-L^1." Wherever this occurs, it means that it is optional with the writer which form shall be used. Either is correct.

PREFACE.

THE completion of a phonographic dictionary of the English language so comprehensive as this, is an event of such importance that I feel impelled to devote considerable space to a review of the history and developement of the art of Phonography, and to a consideration of its ultimate bearing upon the question of the general adoption of Short-hand in place of our present long-hand, as the popular system of manuscript. It also seems especially desirable that this should be done, in order that the public may be better informed on the subject, and thus made able to guard against misrepresentation and imposture. The first question that naturally arises is,

WHAT IS PHONOGRAPHY?

Phonography is both a Discovery and an Invention. The Discovery was made by Isaac Pitman, of Bath, England, nearly forty years ago, and was to the effect that all the consonant-sounds of the English language could, with philosophic accuracy, artistic beauty, and practical efficiency, be written with simple straight and curved lines, each requiring but a single movement of the pen; and that all the vowel-sounds could be written in an equally exact and satisfactory manner, with simple dots and dashes placed to those consonant-signs.

Starting with this ground-work of a complete alphabet, both as regards simplicity and capacity for phonetic representation, through the contributions and suggestions of thousands of practical phonographers, both in England and in this country, Phonography has grown to be the most perfect system of language-writing in the world. This subsequent growth of the system, being somewhat empirical in its nature, comes properly under the definition of Invention. Under this head, too, provision is made for still further abridging the phonographic writing by means of compound signs formed from the original simple alphabetic characters, by the addition to them of various hooks, modifications, circles and loops; such signs being used to represent the natural groups of sounds as they occur in speech, and tending to increase both speed and legibility.

PERFECTION OF PITMAN'S ALPHABET.

It is a singular fact that the developement of Phonography, its changes, modifications, alterations and improvements, real or fancied, from the very start, with a few slight exceptions, have been confined within the limits of these subordinate features of the system, the hooks, modifications, etc., above mentioned, and have not at all affected the Alphabet proper. With the exception of the signs for the letters w, y and h, the stenographic alphabets of all writers of works on Phonography have always been and still are precisely the same as that of Isaac Pitman as published by him thirty-four years ago. Indeed, considering the state of the stenographic art at that time, this discovery of the Phonographic Alphabet by Mr. Pitman seems like an inspiration. In the "Phonographic Class-Book" of Andrews and Boyle, the first textbook of the kind published in America, in speaking of their arrangement of the alphabet, the authors say; "It is believed that this arrangement will exhibit the beautiful harmony of the system resulting from Mr. Pitman's analysis of the sounds, in a degree of which he himself has been hardly aware. Truth, when once discovered, unfolds new beauties to all who contemplate it." After this record, and from the fact that all attempts to improve upon Pitman's alphabet (and many have been made by authors ambitious to found new shorthand systems) have hopelessly failed, it seems but fair to conclude that it is substantially perfect, and that in this respect we cannot look for improvement. The requirements of a scientific assignment and classification of the stenographic characters, and the wants of the practical writer of the English language, seem to have been satisfied upon a common basis.

GROWTH OF PHONOGRAPHY.

For the first eighteen or twenty years of the history of Phonography, although many changes were made, they were generally adopted after long discussion between phonographers in England and America, carried on in phonographic periodicals and in phonetic councils elected for the purpose; and although Isaac Pitman gave the final decision upon all suggested alterations, and sometimes did it in a way that was too arbitrary to be entirely satisfactory, the results were generally acquiesced in by phonographers, and only one system was published in England and America.

Pitman's first short-hand publication, which was entitled "Stenographic Sound Hand," was issued in 1837. It consisted of twelve pages of letter-press, about four and a half by three inches in size, and two engraved pages of short-hand of the same size, at the bottom of one of which appeared the words, "Drawn by Isaac Pitman, Stenographer." This little book contained the germ of Phonography, although that title was not given to the system until the appearance of the "Second Edition," in January, 1840. The title then adopted was, "Phonography, or writing by sound, being also a new and natural short-hand." This "Edition," printed from a single engraved steel plate, eight by six and a half inches in size, was sold for one penny; and Mr. Pitman notices the fact that it was published simultaneously with the establishment of the penny postage scheme. The "Third Edition" appeared in December, 1840, and contained twenty-three octavo pages of letter-press, and fourteen pages of exercises engraved on wood. Then followed the "Fourth Edition," in 1841, and the "Fifth Edition" in 1842. The latter was issued in two forms, one of which was called the "Pocket Edition."

Up to and including the "Fifth Edition," Mr. Pitman had done very little towards perfecting his art; but after 1842, as will be shown further on, the improvement was very marked and rapid. The system, as presented in the first five "Editions," was exceedingly crude, and many of its prominent features were fanciful, absurd and impracticable. Fortunately, however, at this point a number of practical verbatim reporters, attracted by the beauty of phonographic principles, took the infant art in hand, and in the short space of three years. as shown by the "Seventh Edition," published in 1845, order and system had taken the place of confusion, and improvement was everywhere apparent. In 1847 the "Eighth Edition" was published; and by the year 1849, a very high degree of perfection had been attained, and the great superiority of Phonography over every other system of stenography was made unmistakably manifest.

The improvements in the art of Phonography during these years were certainly wonderful, but they were due almost entirely to the efforts of a devoted band of phonographic reporters, the leader of which was Mr. Thomas Allen Reed, a noted phonographer of London. In the "Advertisement" to his "Reporter's Companion" of 1849, Mr. Pitman acknowledges his great indebtedness to Mr. Reed's assistance in the preparation of that work, and then, in closing, adds; "Communications from professional or private reporters, tending to increase still further either the brevity or the legibility of the system, are respectfully solicited. Address to Mr. T. A. Reed, at the publishers."

Had Isaac Pitman possessed the inclination or the power to have stopped all further changes in Phonography at that point, and had he done so, and then devoted all his energy and great industry to the propagation of the system, even as it then was, it is not at all improbable that the use of our present long-hand, as the means of common, every-day written intercommunication, would have long since passed away. But Mr. Pitman was too enthusiastic a reformer to listen to the words of conservatism, and give Phonography a chance to take root in a soil that was only too ready to receive it; and, furthermore, the phonetic mistake had been made in the system—if not in theory, at least in the mode of representation—of treating w and y always as the equivalents of the vowel-sounds oo and e, whereas, at the commencement of syllables, they are clearly of a consonantal nature; and so, in but a little more than one year, another great phonographic upheaval occurred. But on this occasion a phonetic council of one hundred persons (fifty in Great Britain and fifty in America) was elected by a popular vote of the phonographers of each country, for the purpose, among other things, of uniting the efforts and skill of all in effecting some further improvements in the art. The president of the British Council was Mr. A. J. Ellis, who has since become so noted for his writings upon phonetics and kindred subjects, and among the members occurs the name, "A. M. Bell, professor of elocution," afterwards the author of "Visible Speech." Of the American Council, Dr. James W. Stone was president, and among the members were Stephen Pearl Andrews, author of works on "Universology," Prof. S. S. Haldeman, of Columbia, Pa., and a number of our older phonographic reporters. The discussions of the United Council, which continued for more than a year, took a very wide range, but in regard to Phonography, the chief result was the addition to the Alphabet of consonants stem-signs for w, y and h. The system then, with its additional consonant-signs, and a few modifications of a minor character, was, in the year 1852, published as the "Ninth Edition." It was thought that the labors of this Council would give a permanent and unalterable system, and Mr. Pitman joined in the expression of a general wish that such might be the case. But the quiet lasted only five years, for in 1857 appeared the "Tenth Edition," in which was introduced, with little or no warning, the very radical change of substituting the ah, a, e vowel-scale for the original e, a, ah scale. Both theoretically and practically the new scale is the true one, but it is doubtful if, on the whole, Isaac Pitman has improved his system by the change, because, in the practical details of Phonography, he has failed to conform fully to the new scale; and especially is there lacking that strict adherence to word position, that characterizes our Phonography. Besides, by showing a disregard for the result of the labors of the Council of 1851, and also for the wants of the practitioner, who is greatly inconvenienced by such continual changing, Mr. Pitman paved the way for other and independent laborers in the same field. In England, under the protection of copyright, nothing could be published without Pitman's consent; but in this country, no such barrier existed, and so the only two authors who were then in the field, declined to follow Isaac Pitman. In 1858 Mr. Graham published his Hand Book of "Standard" Phonography, in which the "Ninth Edition" was taken as the basis; and shortly after, Mr. Benn Pitman, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who until then had followed implicitly the publications of his brother Isaac, also issued a modification of the "Ninth Edition."

The method of improving Phonography, adopted by Isaac Pitman, of consulting with, and getting suggestions from, other phonographers, and especially those who were using it constantly as professional verbatim reporters, to whom both speed and legibility were important, was an excellent one for discovering a vast amount of stenographic material, in the form of abbreviating expedients, together with the best modes of applying that material,—a work which no one person acting by himself, could hope to ever accomplish; but, on the other hand, that method has been the means of rendering the system less simple, consistent and harmonious in its details. Little exceptional expedients have been introduced from time to time, which, at the time of their adoption, were useful and also comparatively harmless, because there was nothing with which they would conflict; but which afterwards, on making some other change or addition, became a source of inconsistency and conflict. And yet those who had learned to use and value them were, for the sake of mere personal convenience, disinclined to vote for their expulsion. Finally, so numerous had these disturbing features become, that there was scarcely a rule of Phonography, even the most fundamental, to which there were not several and sometimes many exceptions. And when, in 1858, after the Hand Book of "Standard" Phonography was brought out, it appeared that its author had not only retained all of these old objectionable things, but had added several others of like character, I resolved, having the aid and counsel of other practical phonographers, to attempt the task of simplifying Phonography, a work then so much needed. I commenced the undertaking in the winter of 1858-9, and most of the features of my present system were adopted at that time. No important changes, however, were made except such as were necessary to carry out the general plan of simplification. The spirit of Pitman's Phonography was retained, but the accumulated rubbish, that retarded the progress of the learner and hindered the practitioner, was cast off.

To show how sweeping was this work of simplification, it is only necessary to exhibit, in parallel columns, the more important of the rules of the old Phonography by the side of the corresponding rules of our simplified system. For this purpose I have chosen the rules of the "Hand Book;" but, in all essential points, they represent Benn Pitman's system as well.

"HAND BOOK" RULES.	OUR RULES.
THE L-HOOKS. § 161. (a) A small hook on the circle-side, and at the beginning of any consonant-stroke (except l, r, m, n, ng, s, z, w, h), indicates that an l follows it. (b) Shel and Zhel never stand alone, have their hooks at the bottom, and are always written upward.	L AND R HOOKS ON STRAIGHT STEMS. A small hook at the beginning of any straight-stem—(a) if made by a motion from the right over to the left, indicates that the consonant l immediately follows;—(b) if made by a motion from the left over to the right, it indicates that the consonant r immediately follows.
REM. 1. The sentence "No MeRRy SoNGS[Z] We'LL HeaR," contains all the consonants whose signs do not take the small El-hook. REM. 2. El-hook on Em, En, Ray.—The reporter uses a large initial hook on Em, En, Ray for l. The El-hook must be made large in these cases, to distinguish it from the Way-hook.	L AND R HOOKS ON CURVED STEMS. A large hook at the beginning, and on the inner or concave side of any curved stem, indicates that the consonant l immediately follows. A small hook in the same place on any curved stem, indicates that the consonant r immediately follows.
THE R HOOKS. § 162. Signs to indicate the combination of r with a preceding consonant (except s, z, l, r, m, n, ng, w, y, h), are obtained by turning over sidewise the corresponding El-hook signs, except Shel, Zhel, which are turned over endwise.

(b) Sher and Zher have their hook at the top, and are always written downward.

§ 163. R may be added to Em and En by a small initial hook, provided they are widened [i. e. shaded into our Hay and Ing.]

REM. 1. The widening of Em and En when they take the Ar-hook serves to distinguish mr and nr from wm and wn.

REM. 2. As Ar, Es, Ing, Way do not take the Ar-hook, fr, thr, nr, vr cannot be mistaken for rr, sr, ngr, wr.

REM. 4. The sentence "HiS eRRiNG WiLL You See" contains all the consonants whose signs do not take the Ar-hook.

LENGTHENING PRINCIPLE.

§ 207. Doubling the length—

1. Of Ing, adds kr or gr;

2. Of any other curve, adds tr, dr, or thr.

§264. The reporter may derive great advantage from doubling a full-length straight line, without a final attachment, to add thr for there, their or they are; the heavy lines being tapered toward their termination.

Doubling the length of any curved stem, whether simple or hooked, and of any straight stem with a final hook, adds either tr, dr or thr.

HALVING TO ADD EITHER T OR D.

§ 212. Either t or d may be added to certain signs, by halving them:

1. To Any Unhooked Consonant-Stroke except El, Lay, Em, En, Ar [Er], Ing, Way, Yay, Emp or Emb [our Hay sign].

2. To Any Hooked Consonant-Stroke.

REM. 1. Way, Yay, Emp, and Ing are never halved for any purpose; but El, Lay, Em, En, and Ar are sometimes halved, as will appear from § 213.

REM. 2. Hooked Way, Yay, Emp, unlike simple Way, Yay, Emp, may be halved.

§ 213. By halving the curve-signs for l, m, n, or r,—t or d is Either t or d may be added by halving to any consonant-stem, whether simple or hooked.

added, according as the shortened letter is made light or heavy.

REM. 2. The strokes of shortened Wem and Wen [our Mrd and Nrd] must not be widened [shaded] when d is added; for these signs could not then be distinguished from Merd and Nerd [our Hrd and NGrd].

REM. 3. Since Yay, Emp, Ing, Way are never halved, Eld can not be read for yd; Med [our Ht] for mpt; Ned [our NGt] for ngd; Ard for wd.

LEARNER'S DIFFICULTIES.

The foregoing exhibit shows the following as some of the difficulties encountered by every student of the Old Phonography: Out of the twenty-five simple stems there are eight, viz., L (upward), L (downward,) R, NG, S, Z, W, H, to which the l-hook cannot be joined at all; three, M, N and R (upward), to which it may be joined in an exceptional manner; and two others, SH and ZH, that require special directions or cautions. There are ten stems, S, Z, L, L, R, R, NG, W, Y, H, to which the r-hook cannot be joined at all; two, SH and ZH, that require special directions, and of those signs to which it may be joined, there are six, F, V, TH, DH, M, N, that must be "turned over" or "widened"—that is, changed respectively to R, W, S, Z, MP [our H], and NG,—before they can receive the hook.

A very large proportion of those who commence the study of the Old Phonography break down at this point. But if they continue, their next difficulty is this: Lengthening a curved stem generally adds tr or dr, or the cognate thr; but to NG it sometimes adds kr or gr, and in other cases this stem follows the general rule. And in Benn Pitman's Phonography, lengthening MP [our H] simply adds r.

The halving of stems to add the frequent sounds t and d is the most important fundamental principle of Phonography, as it not only applies to the simple stems but also to every hooked stem; and if anything further were needed to discourage the pupil, it may be found in ample quantities in the rules for the Halving principle. By halving any one of the first sixteen consonant-stems of the Alphabet, either t or d is added; but the halving of M, N, L or R merely adds t, and then to add d, these half-lengths are shaded, that is, changed respectively to MPt [our Ht], NGt, Yt, and Wt.

In other words, and to recapitulate and further illustrate—The stem W with an initial hook becomes V (Vr); made half-length, it is transformed into R (Rd); put an initial hook on the half-length, and it changes to V again (Vrd); made either full or half-length, if it has a final hook only, it is still W (Wn, Wnd); but in spite of such final hook, if an initial hook also is added it again becomes V (Vrn, Vrnd); and when lengthened it is still W in all cases except when it has an initial hook, and then it is V (Vrthr). The stem Y made half-length becomes L (Ld); double its length and it is Y; and with a hook, initial, final or both, and whether made full, double or half-length, it is still Y. NG with an initial hook becomes N (Nr); halved when in this condition, or when simple, it remains N (Nrd, Nd); and whether halved or not, returns to its former self when it has a final hook (NGn). MP [our H] changes to M when it has an initial hook (Mr); remains M when halved whether it is simple or has an initial hook (Md, Mrd); and whether halved or not assumes its maiden name (MP) when it has a final hook (MPn). The irregularity in the effect upon these four stems of the two modes of modification will be observed:—They lose their identity when made half-length, W becoming Rd—Y, Ld—NG, Nd and MP, Md; and yet the Lengthening Principle works no such change.

THE NEW PHONOGRAPHY.

In our New and simplified Phonography all this bewildering maze is swept away. In all its elementary principles there is not a single exception to a rule. In the treatment of the stems by adding hooks, modifying them, etc., it will be seen that what is true of one straight stem is true of every other straight stem; and what is true of one curved stem is true of every other curved stem. So that all of the elements of Phonography, so far as they relate to the Consonants, may be fully explained, illustrated and taught, with only two of the alphabetic signs, a straight and a curved stem.

From the very start the author was satisfied, as were many others, that the New Phonography would be a vast improvement upon the Old in practical efficiency, but it was not given to the public until it had been thoroughly tried in every kind of verbatim reporting for nearly eight years. Its simplicity soon won for it many admirers and adherents, and since its first publication in December, 1866, it has advanced so rapidly in popular favor that it is now the leading system of shorthand in America.

Then, besides being so very simple in its elementary principles, making it easy to acquire and retain, great care has been taken by the author in adjusting the details of the system, in order to make it as perfect in its practical working as it is in theory. All phonographers know that to get the full benefits of their art, the signs of nearly all the vowels must be omitted, the writer depending almost entirely upon the unvocalized consonant outlines; because, in practice, the leaving out of the vowel-signs scarcely ever causes any illegibility of the writing. But, scattered here and there, are just a few words, which, unless specially provided for, would sometimes occasion ambiguity, and so lead to errors in reading or transcribing. This occurs in cases where two words, which cannot readily be distinguished one from the other by the context of a sentence, have the same consonant outlines, or outlines between which the resemblance is too close for safety. The requisite difference in the mode of writing such words is usually secured by assigning a particular outline to one word and another outline to the other—the great wealth of consonant-outline material of Phonography providing an abundant supply from which to make selection. When this cannot be done, some arbitrary distinction of position, abbreviation or vocalization is employed. It is this work, more than any other, of following out all the ramifications of Phonography into word and phrase forms, and detecting and overcoming practical difficulties, that demands the greatest experience and patience on the part of the author. For perfection in this respect no other system compares with the New Phonography, as it embodies the results of fifteen years' constant practice in verbatim reporting. Indeed, there is no other system of Phonography that is based alone on practical experience, or that was subjected to a thorough working test before publication. And so it has become a common notion that every reporter must make additions "of his own" to the system as learned from the books, in order to do satisfactory reporting with it. But, while this was true of the Old Phonography, it is not of the New, for learners here find no such necessity. The entire work of adjustment and adaptation to the needs of the practitioner has been done by the author; and whoever attempts to tamper with or tinker the system for his own use will certainly lose by the operation. In doing this part of the work there has been a constant effort to keep as close to the general rules and principles of the system as was possible; the actual deviations being very few indeed, and only such as could not be avoided.

The New Phonography is superior to the Old in the following particulars:

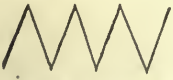
1. SPEED. 2. LEGIBILITY. 3. SIMPLICITY.

I. SPEED.

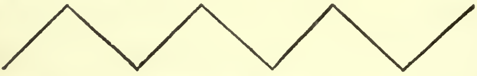
By Speed of Phonography is meant the rate at which one who is thoroughly familiar with both its theory and practice can write it in such a manner that it may be correctly read without hesitation; and it is usually estimated by the number of words so written in a minute. The ordinary rate of public speaking is from 120 to 130 words a minute; an average of 150 words is quite rapid, and 175 to 190 is very rapid, but few speakers reaching that speed; although even that is occasionally exceeded for short spurts, by eloquent or excited speakers.

A phonographer who can write correctly and legibly 115 to 125 words a minute is competent to do most amanuensis work; and one who can in like manner write 150 words, is prepared, so far as his shorthand is concerned, to begin verbatim reporting. The speed-test of the Law Stenographers' Association of the City of New York, as given in its Constitution, is as follows: "First. The applicant shall be fairly tried as to his speed of writing. If he fail to write legibly 150 words a minute, on the committee so reporting to the Association, the application shall be rejected without further test." A person who commences reporting with a speed of 150 words a minute, well written, may depend upon future experience and the inspiration of the moment to tide him safely over passages that are spoken above that rate. There are several reporters who have been known to write for short periods a little above 200 words a minute, and there is one authentic instance of a reporter of great natural quickness exceeding 250 words a minute, while writing from a dictation of matter that was new to him! That this feat will be less uncommon in the future I have reason to believe, judging from recent remarkable results of practice by several of those who have been trained in this system.

The great brevity that distinguishes Shorthand from Longhand comes from giving to written lines as much meaning as possible, by making them represent in the briefest manner consistent with practical requirements, the various sounds of the voice used in speech. But it is a common error with those who know but little of shorthand, or have had but little practical experience in writing it, to suppose that it is always true, as a matter of course, that the smaller or the more contracted a word outline is, the more quickly it can be written. And we often see theorizing authors of shorthand works demonstrating by rule and dividers and by the counting of pen-strokes, the superiority of their systems in point of speed; while they fail to take cognizance on the other hand of the many hindrances to speed that inhere in their outlines. The following are some of the more important of those hindrances: (a) A great number of exceptions to rules—because they overload the memory and cause hesitation. (b) The use of too large a list of contractions or abbreviated outlines—because they also overtax the memory and cause hesitancy, thus defeating the very object for which they were intended—increase of speed—and at the same time contribute largely to the illegibility of the writing. It is the testimony of all our best and most experienced practical verbatim reporters that the use of a great many phonographic abbreviations is not conducive to speed; and that the system of shorthand that divides the labor the most equally between the head and the hand is the best. (c) Writing many words with too condensed or small, though not abbreviated, forms—because there is greater liability to conflict, and a consequent hesitancy in writing. (d) The use of many exceedingly brief expedients, such as ticks, ticks with hooks and circles attached, microscopic twists, curves, etc., for the representation of frequent words and phrases—because they require the writer to be making constant efforts to check the motion or momentum of the hand, (the necessary consequence of passing rapidly from characters of one size to those of a very different size), thus preventing the continuous movement and free sweep of the hand which are so essential to rapid writing. (e) Too frequent obtuse angles between stems—a very great impediment to speed, as may be readily demonstrated by tracing with exactness, but as quickly as possible, a line like the first of the following diagrams, and then in like manner, one like the second. It will be seen that the outline with obtuse or blunt angles requires a much slower movement than the one with sharp angles.



ACUTE ANGLES.



OBTUSE ANGLES.

Some have made the mistake of supposing, because the general line of writing is from left to right, that therefore speed would be gained by writing the most frequently recurring consonant-sounds with stems that run in that direction; while in fact such strokes are on several accounts the most difficult to make. Precision is quite as important as freedom in writing Phonography; and there is a tendency of the hand in making strokes from left to right to slide beyond control. And, besides, it is more difficult to shade horizontal stems than those struck in any other direction. The chief objection, however, to using horizontal stems for the most frequent consonant sounds is that it would add greatly to the number of obtuse angles in outlines. In order to secure the greatest number of acute angles in shorthand, the most frequent consonants must be written with stems that are struck across and not with the line of writing. In this respect the Phonographic alphabet is properly constructed; but Mr. Lindsley, in his alphabet of Tachygraphy, has made the mistake of giving horizontal stems to the four most frequent of all the consonant-sounds, t, d, s and z; and the result is that his consonant-joinings are so bad that he is obliged to use his vowel-signs quite as much to help him past obtuse angles and make his consonant outlines tolerable, as for purposes of vocalization. A line of Tachygraphy resembles a line of Phonography with the angles pulled out!

Another element that contributes to the superior speed qualities of the New Phonography is the great number of easily formed and easily remembered phrase-signs which it naturally provides for writing the groups of words that so frequently occur in speech.

II. LEGIBILITY.

By Legibility of Phonography is meant the certainty and ease with which it can be read after having been rapidly written, with all the little deviations from mathematical accuracy that usually occur in writing done by a hand of ordinary training and skill. The importance of legibility has been under-estimated by many, and it is too apt to be unappreciated by learners in their efforts to get speed. In all cases where Phonography is used to record an author's composition, as employed by dictation amanuenses, phonographic secretaries, or, in short, for any phonographic work except reporting public speeches, the writer is frequently called upon to read over what he has just written, and he must be able to do so without error in any word. The exactions from short-hand writers in courts now are much greater than they were formerly, it being an every-day occurrence to require them to read in open court their notes of testimony; and if they do not write a legible shorthand in a legible manner, they must fail. There is no city in the world that has so many thoroughly skilled law stenographers as New York; and their accuracy in recording and transcribing trials and other legal proceedings is implicitly relied upon by litigants and courts. But instances have been known where material and permanent injury has been done through the inaccuracies of reporters; and so it should be the aim of all learners of Phonography to get, first, Accuracy, second, Speed. Legibility in itself is an important contributor to speed, because it gives a feeling of confidence and certainty to the writer in regard to his work.

That the New Phonography is much easier to read than the Old is now quite generally admitted by those phonographers who have had an opportunity of testing it, either in their own practice or in that of others,—and especially by observing the work of young phonographers to whom they have given dictations to be transcribed by them into longhand. Indeed, because of the greater legibility of this system, and the consequent accuracy of the writers of it, they are now preferred as amanuenses by our older reporters; and those who have undertaken actual reporting have distinguished themselves by the superiority of their work.

III. SIMPLICITY.

By Simplicity of Phonography is meant the absence of exceptions to general rules and principles. It mainly consists in (a) an Alphabet in which the consonant-signs are all simple, that is unhooked or unmodified, stems, and the vowel and diphthong signs are arranged in their proper positions with respect to the stems; (b) a regular and systematic series of compound or group consonant-signs, formed from the original simple alphabetic signs by the uniform addition of hooks and modifications to all of the stems; (c) a strict adherence to the rule for word-position, by invariably writing each word in the position indicated by its accented vowel; and (d) a general harmony of all parts of the system, both in the fundamental principles and in the practical working details. That the New Phonography is immensely superior to the Old in all these respects scarcely admits of a doubt or an argument. The demonstration of this fact that has already been made on preceding pages of this Preface renders it unnecessary to give it further space.

The great practical effect of this simplification of Phonography is shown, first in its improved efficiency in respect to both its Speed and Legibility, and, secondly, in the far greater ease with which it is learned and remembered. The complications of the Old Phonography barred it out from our schools as a successful branch of education, kept its benefits from the general public, and made it the special property of the few who adopted the profession of verbatim reporting. The New Phonography is now being taught with success in many schools, and notably in the Introductory Class of the College of the City of New York, where it has been a regular branch of the commercial course for the last three years (since the Fall of 1871). The success of the phonographic instruction in this college has been so marked that it is prized as one of the most attractive and valuable features of the course. In this institution it is taught in large classes; the classes meet but three times a week, and each student has six other branches in his course. Yet these boys learn the principles thoroughly, become trained into making excellent phonographic forms, and reach a speed of 50 to 90 words a minute, during the college year of thirty-five weeks.

Equally successful results in teaching the New Phonography have been accomplished under the plan of separate or private instruction, in the New York Institute of Phonography, in this city. This institution is wholly devoted to teaching Phonography, and as it is inconvenient therein to form classes because new pupils are received at any time, the plan has been adopted with perfect success of instructing students separately, the same as book-keeping is usually taught in business colleges.

It was formerly impossible to teach advanced Phonography in classes; but now, with the New Phonography, such teaching is carried to nearly, if not quite, as high a degree of form-perfection and speed as by separate instruction. Therefore, teachers can hereafter form classes in the New Phonography with the confidence that the advanced part of the system is as simple and methodical as the beginning, and that complete practical results will be achieved in such classes, and the benefits of the art attained for immediate use by the students.

CONCLUSION.

In arriving at a conclusion as to superiority among systems of Phonography, it should be clearly borne in mind that the other two American systems have not had a single improvement made in them since the publication of the last edition of their text-books, 15 or 16 years ago. Since that time very many valuable points have been learned and some fortunate discoveries made by practical phonographers through experience more peculiar and extensive than before realized. Reporting of courts-martial during the war, daily law-court reporting, carried to its present high proficiency by the encouragement of permanent official appointments, and the use of shorthand for purposes not before anticipated, are included in this experience. The New Phonography in its construction has enjoyed the full benefits of all these influences, and admitting all that may be claimed in favor of the other systems, they are still the Old Phonography, contain no improvements made since 1859, and consequently do not make any provision for requirements in practical Phonography that have grown up since that date.

Before that time all that was required of even the most experienced professional phonographer was to take only such minutes of trials, speeches, etc., that he would be able afterwards to furnish a correct transcript of them. Hence speed was considered of sole importance, and the authors of the old text-books had scarcely anything to say about legibility. Elaborate and systematic provision was made for the omission of frequent words in writing, with the fond hope that "the context" would supply the missing links. It has been the boast of one author that his "reporting style" is distinguished, among other things, "By implying To, followed or not by a, an or the (which are supplied by means of the context), by joining the following word to the preceding; thus, Ish^1-Bee, wish to be. By implying Of, followed or not by a, an or the (which are supplied by aid of the context), by writing the following word near or joined to the preceding. By writing the present time for the past tense or time whenever a stroke or more can be saved thereby." In like manner another vain attempt to attain greater speed at a fearful expense to legibility was made in the provision to write a great many words with the same outline, and that usually a very much abbreviated one. The following illustrations have been taken at random from the only American dictionary of the Old Phonography: "Abundant-ly-ce, rws [reporting word-sign], Bend^2; Appoint-ed-ment, rs [reporting style], Pent^1; Criminal-ly-ity-ate-ated-ation, rs, Ker^1-Men; Exclaim-ed, exclamation-tory-(tive), rs, Kays^2-Kel; Expedient-ly-ce-cy and Expedition, rs, (Kay)-Spet^1; Gravitate-d-ation, Gravity, rs, Ger-Vet^2; Hesitate-d-ion (Hesitant-ancy), Zet^2; Stupid-ly-ity-ness, rws, Steh-Ped^3"—["Steh" meaning the st-loop.] But the impracticability of all these nice theoretical expedients so ingeniously contrived was soon demonstrated. Our civil war broke out; trials by courts-martial became numerous; the services of phonographers were indispensable; but stern army officers, taking a thoroughly practical view of shorthand, required that their phonographers should read their notes as readily as they wrote them, and so made them read aloud to each witness, in presence of the court, his entire deposition as soon as it was taken. The result of all this was the inevitable one. It was very soon found that mutilated outlines, used sometimes to represent a whole cluster of words, and context-reading of absent signs would not do for this work. Omitted words that the writer expected to be restored by implication refused to come back to him when he needed them. So all our shorthand writers who had adopted these expedients were obliged to abandon them and devise means to insure ready and complete legibility in their most rapid writing. Once started, the practice of calling upon the stenographer at any time to read from his notes has extended to the reporting of all other trials and legal proceedings. The contrast between our Phonography and the Old in respect to omitted outlines is very marked. The New Phonography does not omit the expression of a single word even in the most advanced verbatim work, and provides for representing every word in the language with precision.

If some persons in starting to learn Phonography should suppose that it will make no material difference to them which system they adopt because they are all called "Phonography," they are informed that no system of shorthand ever devised is any too capable ; and that if they have the ambition to be able to report rapid speakers, or even to do work of ordinary speed with ease and accuracy, they must be sure to select the best system, as by some methods no amount of natural ability and application will prevent failure.

To the possible general introduction of Phonography for use in place of longhand, the objection has been raised that the system is faulty because in its construction verbatim reporting has been the ultimate aim. But when we consider that the requirements of verbatim reporters and of those who would use shorthand for other purposes, are the same—namely, rapidity and legibility—and that the more recent experience of our best shorthand writers shows that but few abbreviations are required even in the swiftest work, this objection falls to the ground. Again, it has been urged against Phonography that the vowel-signs should be always written and in the same outline with the consonant-stems. This objection is not well founded for the following reasons : (a) The vowel-signs are not needed, the unvocalized characters being practically as legible without them as with ; (b) it would of necessity take from the consonants a portion of outline-material, and so lead to the use of still longer characters for the consonants, without any compensating gain ; (c) as the vowel-signs would have to be much smaller than the consonant-stems, loss of speed from the cause already mentioned, "of passing rapidly from characters of one size to those of a very different size," would be occasioned; (d) the whole history of shorthand demonstrates that the vowel-signs, when given at all, should be separate from the consonant-outlines. Phonography provides a perfect means for writing the vowels, in such a way that whether they are expressed or omitted, the general appearance of the written word is the same. And as all mature reading is from general appearances, and not from an actual analysis of every character in a word each time that the eye passes it, this is an important point in favor of the phonographic plan of writing. Because Phonography is not so easily read by one who has just acquired it as the longhand that he has used since childhood, is no argument against it. Professor Tyndall, in his recent address before the British Association, speaking on this very point, says, "Witness the slow learning of its letters by a child, and the subsequent facility of reading in a man, when each group of letters which forms a word is instantly, and without effort, fused to a single perception." Thus it is with the experienced reader of phonographic writing, only with this difference, that instead of being confined to single words, owing to the brevity of the outlines and the use of Phraseography, whole sentences are taken in at a single glance.

It would seem that most if not all of the objections that are raised to Phonography are similar to those that the child-learner would be apt to make in regard to the common print. But now that Phonography is beginning to have a fair chance in our schools, it may safely be left to take care of itself, without fear as to the result.

Considering the great simplicity of its elementary plan it is surprising how few difficult or awkward outlines are to be found in Phonography in its application to writing every word of our complicated language, as tested in going through the entire Dictionary. In this respect it contrasts very favorably with our longhand. There are very few instances of phonographic outlines which require that after making one line the pen must retrace a portion of it, as is the case with several of the longhand letters; and it is doubtful if there is a word in the language whose phonographic outline is intrinsically so difficult to make as the small c of longhand when it is joined to a preceding letter.

The common English orthography is almost entirely artificial in its character, and it requires so much time and application to master its difficulties as they occur in the ordinary words of the language, that correct spelling has come to be considered one of the most thorough special tests of scholarship. But spelling in Phonography is so natural and easy a thing that it can never be made such a test; hence there will always be a much greater latitude in the choice and use of its signs than is now allowed in the common spelling.

As Phonography is intended especially to be of practical utility, it should not be so closely bound as to fetter it by those little phonetic niceties that have rather a scientific than a theoretic value. For instance, our leading lexicographers almost invariably represent the syllables -ture, -dure, -tian, -tion, etc., in such words as nature, verdure, christian, question, etc., as beginning with the consonants ty or dy: but in Webster's Dictionary it is admitted that by some speakers, tu and ti in these words "are suffered to sink into the easier and closely allied sound of ch in church; thus, na-choor, kris-chan, kwes-chun, etc." See sections 66, 95 and 97 of "Principles of Pronunciation" in that dictionary. But Mr. Alexander J. Ellis, in his work "On Early English Pronunciation," Part I, page 203, has treated this subject much more exhaustively. He says:

> "T, D have now a tendency, ignored by most orthoepists, under particular circumstances to pass into ch, j; thus, nature, verdure are, perhaps most frequently, pronounced nā-chr, vr-jr, the last word being in that case identified with verger. * * * * The palatals ē, y have always had a great effect upon preceding consonants of the dental and guttural class, as they tend to materially alter the position of the tongue, in order to facilitate the transition to a following vowel. The languages derived from the Latin are full of instances. It is a fashion in modern English to resist, or to believe that we resist, this tendency in the especial case of -ture and -dure, but we have given into it completely in -tion. * * * * A similar change is recognized in -cious, -cial. And it is in vain to protest against -ture, -dure becoming chr, jr, at a time when even -työŏr, dyŏŏr, though far less pedantic than -tēoor, dēoor, have a singularly orthoepistic effect."

In all other systems of Phonography but this, the arbitrary rule of the orthoepists in regard to these words has been followed, and many preferable phonographic outlines have thus been excluded. The plan adopted in this Dictionary, however, is to treat these syllables as beginning with either ch or ty, j or dy, according to which gives the best outline in each particular case; passing by the question of absolute accuracy of analysis as being of less practical importance than the securing of distinctive and easily written word-forms.

In choosing between two outlines for a word, I have constantly kept before me while preparing this Dictionary, the question, What outline would I, if engaged in actual verbatim reporting, be most apt to select as the best?—not, What outline could possibly be used? Sometimes when greatly in doubt which to adopt, I have given both, leaving it to further experience and discussion to decide the point. During the preparation of this work I have frequently referred to Isaac Pitman's Phonographic Dictionaries of 1852 and 1867, and A. J. Graham's of 1862, and have sometimes been aided by them in my conclusions; but they have been rather uncertain guides because of the very frequent omission of words whose outlines offer the greatest difficulties, and the constant practice of the latter author of giving the briefest possible outlines that he could devise, irrespective of their practicability both as regards the writer and the reader. Generally speaking, in this Dictionary no word has been given an outline that will not admit of receiving all the vowel-signs of that word; for, while it is true that the advanced writer seldom inserts the vowels, yet the legibility of the writing greatly depends upon the consonant-outline itself suggesting the vocalization. In other words, the spirit of the vowel should be present though its visible sign is absent. For a like reason, when convenient, fuller outlines have been assigned to uncommon or infrequent words than would be necessary if they were of frequent recurrence. Also, with uncommon words, special effort has been made to retain the outlines of their derivatives. And when two words have the same consonants, but vary in number of syllables, if there is a choice of outlines, the longest outline has been assigned to the word containing the greatest number of syllables. See Acute and Cute, Atheism and Theism.

Heretofore the principles of motion-balance in writing Phonography have not been understood or recognized. When possible, of two outlines of nearly equal length, the one that balances the motion of the hand the best has been preferred. Thus, the outline Br-N-CH is better than Brn-CH for branch, but Bln-CH is better than Bl-N-CH for blanch, and Dr-N-CH than Drn-CH for drench. The outline M-N-TH (month) is an illustration of good balancing.

This Dictionary gives the outlines of 60,000 words and over 5,000 proper names, being far the most complete and comprehensive work of the kind ever published; and yet the whole is brought within a volume sufficiently small for convenient use. The Nomenclature that is provided in the Introduction for the proper analytic reading of phonographic outlines, is much superior to any ever before devised. That employed by Mr. Graham, and which he uses instead of the actual phonographic outlines in his dictionary, represents the hooks, modifications, circles and loops as if they invariably had their light or breath sounds, regardless of the way they are sounded in each particular word; thus, his name for the outline of pave is Pef, of baize, Bees, etc. And in dividing his names of outlines into syllables, there is no yielding from a set plan in order to accommodate the peculiarities of phonographic joinings. But in our Nomenclature the name of each outline represents accurately all of its consonant-sounds, and the divisions between syllables correspond with the natural divisions between the different stems of the outline, thus indicating exactly how it should be written. Compare the two methods of naming phonographic signs in the following words: Abscond, [G's] Bees-Kend, [ours] Bee-Skend; Besom, [G's] Bees-Em, [ours] Bee-Zem; Desire, [G's] Dees-Ar, [ours] Dee-Zer; Observe, [G's] Bees-Ref, [ours] Bee-Zreev; Destroy, [G's] Dees-Ter, [ours] Dee-Stree.

The new principle of allowing straight stems with final hooks to be lengthened to add tr, dr or thr, which was first suggested by Mr. C. A. Walworth, has been thoroughly tested in practice and found to be a very valuable improvement. It gives many new word-forms that are superior to those before in use, and also a large number of useful phrases that were not possible until its adoption.

The sound of the letters a, ai and ea before r, in such words as c*a*re, b*a*re, sh*a*re, *ai*r, f*ai*r, h*ai*r, p*ea*r, b*ea*r, w*ea*r, has been a troublesome one for lexicographers to determine with exactness. They have commonly treated it as being the sound of long a (ā), somewhat modified by the following r sound. As any modification of a sound produces a different sound, this description is rather an unscientific one; but practically it indicates with sufficient nicety the sound heard in these words as they are pronounced in England. In this country, however, (and, according to Webster and A. J. Ellis, the pronunciation prevails with some English people), the almost universal usage is to give to this vowel the same sound that is heard in at, cat, etc., but somewhat prolonged in quantity. Isaac Pitman, following the prevailing pronunciation of his country, has always written this vowel in Phonography with the second-place heavy dot; and American authors (myself included until recently) have followed his example. But in this Dictionary—and in the system as now taught—this vowel-sound, if the ordinary six-vowel scale is used, is represented by the first-place light dot-sign. In the extended or complete vowel-scale its sign is a first-place heavy-dash, written parallel to the consonant-stem. Mr. Graham, in his Dictionary, says, "The sound of pare is the same as the vowel of at, only the former is long while the latter is short;" and yet he ordinarily represents the sound of pare with the sign of ā.

SYNOPSIS OF PRACTICAL PHONOGRAPHY.

To enable phonographers who write other systems to use this Dictionary with profit, a Synopsis of the New Phonography is given below in the form of illustrative stems, words and phrase-signs, under the headings of the New Classification and Arrangement.

ALPHABET.

Consonant Signs: \ P, \ B, | T, | D, / CH, / J, — K, — G, F, V, (TH, (DH,) S,) Z, SH, ZH, L, R, / R, M, N, NG, W, Y, H.

Vowel Signs: ah, ă, ā, ĕ, ē, ĭ, aw, ŏ, ō, ŭ, oo, ŏŏ; I, OI, OW, EW.

SIMPLE-STEMS.

Simple Vowels: bah, bay, be, at, / etch, eat, may, me, ray, hay, she, caw, ode, too, up, abbey, ago, ado, iota, payee.

Diphthongs: by, boy, cow, due, nigh, Iowa.

Two Stems: balm, back, bake, beck, Adam, tomb, calm, king, make, pack, cap, dumb, coop, ask, shake, bush, bushy, feel, felly, lake, alike, fear, berry, arm, roam, arch, earth.

HOOKED-STEMS.

L and R Hooks on Straight Stems: Pl, Pr, Bl, Br, Tl, Tr, Dl, Dr, CHl, CHr, Jl, Jr, Kl, Kr, Gl, Gr, *R*l, *R*r; play, pray, glow, apple, odor, eagle, copper, noble, reply, tiger, checker, nearly, furl, girl; it will, by all, / which will, / which are, by our.

Way Hook: quail, quick, acquire; ought we, can we, were we.

Special Vocalization: dear, tell, coal, call, near, engineer, endure.

Yay Hook: but you-r, what you-r, can you-r.

N Hook: pun, gain, vain, shown, then, men, [many], attain, assign, flown, cunning; if an, you and, have been, more than.

F or V Hooks: deaf, pave, rough, cough, [coffee], grave, [gravy], proof cover; charge of, out of, can have; they have, he have, may have.

Shun Hook: caution, motion, fashion, Russian, nation, ovation, occasion, vacation, national.

Tr, Thr or Dhr Hook: actor, writer, gather, rather, picture; can there, what their, by all their.

MODIFIED STEMS.

Lengthening: mother, waiter, flatter, lender, of their, should there, from there, on their; render, rafter, run there, could have their.

Half Lengths: pate, get, bad, got, shut, pit, [pity, poet, into], rate, right, [riot, ride, rode], plate, prate, word, hurt, friend, patient, efficient, bottom, puzzled, muzzled; at the, out of the, from the, said to, able to, had not, do not, did not, can not.

CIRCLES AND LOOPS.

Small Circle: soap, sake, save, teas, mouse, sect, sale, lace, race, [racy, rosy], desk, unsafe; as, is, as if, has not, as well as, is in, who is.

Large Circle: cases, races, recess, necessity, system, excesses; as h-is, is as, has said, is seen.

Small Loop: cast, raised, state, store, story, coasts; as the, as it, as to, is the, is it, is to, is it as where is the, knows the, as it would.

Large Loop: castor, master, coasters, texture; as their, is there, as there is, has there not been, has there been, unless there, because there is.

Small Circle on Hooks: supply, sable, settled, civil, squaw, caves, veins, occasions, fashions, actors.

Circles and Loops with Hooks Implied: spray, saber, stager, trance, dunce, dunces, puns, punster, punsters, prosper, disgrace, describe, dancing, transpose.

SUBSTITUTES AND EXPEDIENTS.

In and Shun Curls: inscribe, unstrung; in some; physician, physicians, accession, transition, transitions, transitional, processional.

Brief Way Sign: wash, waived.

Brief Hay Sign: heap, hub, half, White, whey.

Brief Ing Sign: meeting, petting.

"To" indicated by Fourth Position: to do, to receive.

Tick for I: I am, (downward with slant of CHv) I have, (upward with slant of *R*l) I will, I will not, I suppose.

Miscellaneous: complain, content, recommend, they complained, foreknowledge, magnify, self evident, doubtfulness, thoughtlessness, instrumental-ity themselves, lordship, loss of money, from day to day.

INTRODUCTION.

The mode employed in this Dictionary of indicating the phonographic outlines of words by means of ordinary letter-types is called STENOTYPY. The plan is as follows:

Each phonographic consonant-sign is represented by the letter or letters of the common alphabet by which it is most readily suggested.

The Stenotypes of the stem-signs are distinguished from the Stenotypes of consonants represented by hooks, modifications, circles, loops, curls, the tick and dot signs for h, and the small sign for w, by printing the former in capital letters and the latter in lower-case or small letters.

SHEE, LEE, REE AND UPWARD S.

The stenotypes of the up-stroke stems Shee, Lee and Ree, are distinguished from the down-stroke stems Ish, El and Er, by being printed in italic or slanting capitals. The stenotype of Ess when struck upward, as in factionist, elocutionist, etc., is also printed with an italic capital; thus, F-Kshn-*S*t, L-Kshn-*S*t.

When a hook, modification, circle, loop or curl may be employed to write more than one consonant or group of consonants, its stenotype is varied to accommodate itself to each particular case. Thus, the stenotype of the outline is sPs for the word space, and sPz for the word suppose; the stenotype of is sNs or sNz,—of , Kss, Ksz or Kzz,—of , *R*st or *R*zd,—of , Grf or Grv,—of , Ttr or Tdhr,—of , Mtr, Mdr or Mdhr —of , sPnt or sPnd.

The stenotype of the shun-curl, for the sake of greater distinction, is always printed in italics; thus, Ks*shn*, Fz*shn*.

Punctuation and other printers' marks are printed between stenotypes, whether of simple or compound stems, to indicate as follows:

1. A hyphen (-) —that the signs are joined; thus,  M-M,  G-G,  N-V,  B-K-M, H-Z, L-M,  P-*R*l  K-Pr,  Gr-V,  M-N-TH,  R-Pt-Bl,  K-T-Gt, P-Ld, P-*L*t.

2. An inverted semicolon (⸵) —that the stems are disjoined and simply written close together; thus, DH ⸵ Plnd (they complained), nsTr ⸵ Mnt (instrumental).

3. A colon (:) —that the stems are disjoined, and the second stem written close to, but a little under the first; thus, K:Dshn (accommodation.)

4. An inverted period (˙) —that the stems are disjoined, and the second stem lapped a little over the first; thus, D˙Td (dated), W˙Td (waited).

Any one of the foregoing punctuation signs printed before a stenotype standing alone, indicates how its outline is to be written in relation to any outline that may precede it; thus, ⸵ Pln denotes the outline of complain, and also that the outline should be written near the preceding word.

A simple space marks the ordinary separation between words.

A numeral just after and near the upper part of a stenotype, indicates the position of its sign; thus,  K^1-M, L^{2}, F^3-L.

When ing is added to outlines that do not admit of the stem NG being easily joined, or to outlines that are abbreviated, the dot sign is used. The stenotype of dot ing is an inverted period in parentheses; thus, Pt(˙)^3 putting, Mt(˙)^3 meeting, Dt(˙)^1 doubting, B^2-K(˙) becoming, P(˙)^1 parting, R^{2}-P(˙) representing.

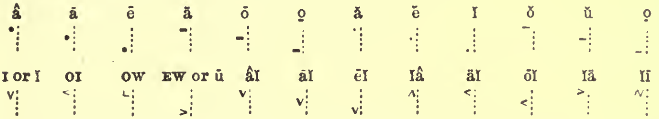
CIRCLES BETWEEN STEMS.

The stenotype of a circle between stems may be joined to either stem; thus,  Ps-V or P-sV, *R*s-K or R-sK. But it is found best in practice to join it to the first stem in all cases where upon completing the first stem and the circle the pen is left in the proper place to go directly on with the next stem of the outline; thus, Bs-J, Ks-J,  Ks-K, Ts-L, Fs-L, Ms-L,  Ms-M,  Ms-N. But in outlines where the circle is turned on the back of the first stem in order to specially accommodate it to the second stem, the stenotype of the circle should invariably be joined to the stenotype of the second stem; thus, D-sK, T-s*L*, TH-s*L*,  N-s*L*.

STENOTYPES OF THE VOWEL-SIGNS.

The stenotypes of the vowel-signs are as follows:



â ā ē ă ō ọ ă ĕ ĭ ŏ ŭ ọ
I or Ī OI OW EW or ū âI āI ēI Iâ ăI ōI Iă Iī

The vowel-stenotypes are printed in with the stenotypes of the consonants in the order of their occurrence in a word; thus, āP, ōD, *L*ā. When a vowel is between two stems, if written to the first stem its stenotype is placed to the stenotype of that stem; if written to the second stem its stenotype is placed to the stenotype of that stem; thus,  Bă¹-K, B²-ĕK, Bā²-K, ăT¹-ĭK,  Kă-Nă-Dă¹, Kŏf¹, Vān². A hyphen between the stenotype of a vowel and a consonant-stenotype indicates that the sign of the vowel is joined to the stem; thus, I-T, I-W. The stenotypes of vowel-signs that are read between a stem and its l or r hook are enclosed in marks of parenthesis; thus, D(ē)r³, T(ĕ)l².

FRENCH NASAL-VOWELS.

As there are no such sounds in the English language as the French nasal vowels, Phonography does not, in its regular alphabet, provide for their representation. But, as words and sentences from the French are often used by speakers, the following expedient is provided for representing these vowels: The sign of the vowel that is nasalized is placed to the stem N or M cancelled with a short tick written between the ordinary vowel-positions, or across the n-hook; thus, in, an, en, un.  enfant. The stenotypes of such cancelled consonants are printed in italics; thus, *N*¹ en, *M*¹ am, *N*² un, N-F*n*¹ enfant.

PHONOGRAPHIC NOMENCLATURE.

In reading the stenotypic outlines the regular phonographic nomenclature is employed.

The names of the consonant-signs are as follows:

Simple Stems:—P, Pee; B, Bee; T, Tee; D, Dee; CH, Chay; J, Jay; K, Kay; G, Gay; F, Ef; V, Vee; TH (sound of th in thin or breath), Ith; DH (sound of th in then or breathe), Dhee; S, Ess; Z, Zee; SH (written downward), Ish; SH (written upward), Shee; ZH (sound of s in pleasure or of French j as in jour), Zhee; L (written upward), Lee; L (written downward), El; R (curved sign for r, written downward), Er; R (straight sign for r, written upward), Ree; M, Em; N, En; NG, Ing; W, Way; Y, Yay; H, Hay.

The names of the compound consonant-signs are formed with their several consonant elements, each stem with all its hooks, modifications, circles and loops. being sounded with the short vowel ĕ inserted where it will best facilitate the pronunciation of the name, as follows:

R-Hook Stems:—Pr, Per; Br, Ber; Tr, Ter; Dr, Der; CHr, Cher; Jr, Jer; Kr, Ker; Gr, Ger; Fr, Fer; Vr, Ver; THr, Ther; DHr, Dher; Sr, Es'r; Zr, Zeer; SHr, Ish'r; *SH*r, Sheer; ZHr, Zher; *L*r (upward), Leer; Lr (downward), El'r; Rr (downward), Er'r; *R*r (upward), Reer; Mr, Mer; Nr, Ner; NGr, Ing'r; Wr, Wer; Yr, Yer; Hr, Her.

NOTE:—Sl and Zl are named Es'l and Zeel to distinguish them from the outline L (downward) with an initial small circle, which is called either Sel or Zel, according as the circle represents the sound of s or z. So Sr and Zr are named Es'r and Zeer, because the outline of R (downward) with an initial small circle is called either Ser or Zer. SHl is named Ish'l, and SHr Ish'r, to distinguish them from *SH*l, Sheel, and *SH*r, Sheer. *L*l is called Leel, and *L*r, Leer, to distinguish them from the downward forms Ll, El'l, and Lr, El'r. Rl is called Erl and Rr, Er'r, to distinguish them from the upward signs, *R*l, Reel, and *R*r, Reer. NGl is called Ing'l, and NGr, Ing'r, because the consonant-sound ng never begins a syllable.

Way-Hook Stems:—The Way-hook stems are named by inserting the sound of Way between the sound of the stem to which it is attached and adding a final ē sound; thus, Pw, Pwee; Bw, Bwee; Tw, Twee; Dw, Dwee; CHw, Chwee; Jw, Jwee; Kw, Kwee; Gw, Gwee.

Yay-Hook Stems:—The Yay-hook stems are named in the same manner as the Way-hook signs, with the vowel ĕ also inserted t facilitate pronunciation; thus, Py, Peyee; By, Beyee; Ty, Teyee Dy, Deyee; CHy, Cheyee; Jy, Jeyee; Ky, Keyee; Gy, Geyee.

N-Hook Stems:—Pn, Pen; Bn, Ben; Tn, Ten; Dn, Den; CHn Chen; Jn, Jen; Kn, Ken; Gn, Gen; Fn, Fen; Vn, Ven; THn, Then; DHn, Dhen; Sn, Es'n; Zn, Zeen; SHn, Ish'n; *SH*n, Sheen; ZHn, Zhen; *L*n, Leen: Ln, El'n; Rn, Ern; *R*n, Reen; Mn, Men; Nn, Nen, NGn, Ing'n; Wn, Wen; Yn, Yen; Hn, Hen.

F or V Hook Stems:—Pf, Pef; Pv, Pev; Bf, Bef; Bv, Bev; Tf, Tef; Tv, Tev, Df, Def; Dv, Dev; CHf, Chef; CHv, Chev; Jf, Jef; Jv, Jev; Kf, Kef; Kv, Kev; Gf, Gef; Gv, Gev; *R*f, Reef; *R*v, Reev.

Shun-Hook Stems:—Pshn, Peshun; Bshn, Beshun; Tshn, Teshun; Dshn, Deshun; CHshn, Cheshun; Jshn, Jeshun; Kshn, Keshun; Gshn, Geshun; Fshn, Feshun; Vshn, Veshun; THshn, Theshun; Sshn, Esshun; Zshn, Zeeshn; SHshn, Ishshun; *SH*shn, Sheeshun; *L*shn Leeshun; Lshn, Elshun; Rshn, Ershun; *R*shn, Reeshun; NGshn, Ingshun; Wshn, Weshun; Hshn, Heshun, etc.

Ter-Hook Stems:—Ptr, Petter; Btr, Better; Ttr, Tetter; Dtr, Detter; *R*tr, Reeter, etc.

Lengthened Simple Stems:—Ftr, Fetter; Fthr, Fether; Fdhr, Fedher; Vtr, Vetter; Str, Ester; Sthr, Esther; Ztr, Zeeter; SHtr, Ishter; *SH*tr, Sheeter; *L*tr, Leeter; Ltr, Elter; Rtr, Erter [See *R*eeter]; NGtr, Ingter, etc.

Half-length Simple Stems:—Pt, Pet; Pd, Ped; Bt, Bet; Ft, Fet; Vd, Ved; THt, Thet; DHt, Dhet; St, Est; *S*t (upward), Eest; Zt, Zeet; SHt, Isht: *SH*t, Sheet; *L*t, Leet; Lt, Elt; Rt, Ert; *R*t, Reet; NGt, Ingt; Ht, Het; Hd, Hed.

Modified Final-hook Stems:—Pntr, Penter; Pnt, Pent; Bntr, Benter; Bnt, Bent; Dndhr, Dendher; Dnt, Dent; Fntr, Fenter; THndr, Thender; Sndr, Esender; Snt, Esent; Zndr, Zeender; Znd, Zeend.

Stems with Small Circle:—sP, Sep; sB, Seb; sT, Set; sJ, Sej; sK, Sek; sF, Sef; sTH, Seth; sDH, Sedh; sS, Sessee; sZ, Sezee; sSH, Sesh; s*SH*, Seshee; sM, Sem; sNG, Seng; s*L*, Slee; sL, Sel; sR, Ser; s*R*, Seree; sW, Sway; sY, Seyay; Ps, Pess; Bs, Bess; Ks, Kess; Fs, Fess; THs, Thess; Ss, Eses; Zs, Zees; SHs, Ishes; *SH*s, Shees; Ms, Mess or Ems; Ns. Ness or Ens; NGz, Ingz; Ws, Wess; sPz, Spez; sNs, Sens; s*L*z, Sleez; sPr, Spree; sBr, Seber; sTr, Stree; sDr, Seder; sCHr, Secher; sJr, Sejer; sKr, Skray; sGr, Seger.

Small Circle Between Stems:—Ks-K, Kess-Kay; Gs-P, Gess-Pee; B-sK, Bee-Sek; B-zM, Bee-Zem; K-zM, Kay-Zem; F-s*L*, Ef-Slee; Mz-M, Mez-M. N-s*L*, En-Slee; D-zR, Dee-Zer; N-Zs, En-Zees; Ss-N, Esess-N.

Stems with Large Circle:—ssP, Sesspee, ssT, Sesstee; ssF, Sessef; ssV, Sessvee; szM, Sezem; szN, Sezen; Psz, Pessez; Kzz, Kezez; Dnsz, Densez; *R*zs-T, Rezess-Tee; Nss-T, Enses-T; ssPr, Sesper; ssTr, Sester; Pzsz, Pezessez.

Stems with Loops:—stP, Step; stD, Sted; stK, Stek; st*L*, Stlee; stR, Ster; st*R*, Steree; Bst, Best; Fst, Fest; Sst, Seest; Zst, Zeest; Rst, Erst; *R*st Reest; *L*st Leest; Bstr, Bester; Kstr, Kester; Fstr, Fester: Sstr, Seester; Zstr, Zeester; SHstr, Ishister; *SH*str, Sheester; *R*str, Reester; *L*str, Leester; Bnst, Benst; Knstr, Kenster.

Circles on Hooks:—sPl, Spel; sBl, Sebel; sTl, Settel; sKl, Skel; sFl, Sfel; sVl, Svel; sNl, Snel; sNGl, Sengel; sFr, Sefer; sVr, Sever; sMr, Semmer; Kvz, Kevz; Fshnz, Feshunz; Vzhnz, Vezhunz; Ktrz, Ketterz.

The name of the dot-sign for -ing is "Ing-dot"; thus, B-K (·), Bee-Kay Ing-dot.

The initial curl for en, in or un is named by the syllable for which it stands in each particular word; thus, nsKr-B (inscribe), Insker-Bee. The final shun-curl is named in connection with the stem to which it is attached; thus, Fz*shn* (physician), Fezshun.

The brief sign for Way is called Wee, and is named with the stem that follows it; thus, wV, Weev; wT, Weet.

The dot-sign for Hay is named with its accompanying vowel and stem; thus, hēP, Heep; hōP, Hope; Whit, White.

Tick-Hay is named with the Way-stem to which it is joined, thus, h-W, Hway.

A stem, with a figure near it indicating the position of the word, is read thus, P^1, Pee-one; Mt(·)^3, Met-Ing-dot-Three; N-G-J^2-N: ʒ, En-Gay-Jay-Two-Ing.

When an inverted semi-colon is used to represent the prefix com-, con- or cum-, it is named by the syllable for which it stands; thus, ⁏Pln^2 (complain), Com-Plen-Two; ⁏D^2-M (condemn), Con-Dee-Two-Em; ⁏Brs^2 (cumbrous), Cum-Bres-Two. But when the sign ⁏ merely denotes disjoining it is read thus, F^2⁏Gt (forget), Ef-Two-Get-Disjoined. An outline containing an inverted period is read thus, D^2·Ted (dated), Dee-Two-Ted-Lapped.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Attention is called to the following instructions and directions in regard to the plan and use of this Dictionary:

The outlines of words are indicated by their stenotypes, in accordance with the method explained at the commencement of this Introduction.

If the accented vowel-sound of a word is written in Phonography with any one of the First-place vowel-signs  the consonant outline of that word is written in the First position; if such vowel-sound is written with any one of the Second-place vowel-signs  the outline of the word takes the Second position; and, if the vowel-sound is written with any one of the Third-place vowel-signs  the consonant outline takes the Third position.

Whether the outline of a word is written in the First, Second or Third position is shown by the numeral ^{1}, ^{2} or ^{3}, placed immediately after the stenotype of the consonant-sign that takes the position indicated by such numeral. The first stem of a word is written in position, (and the position-numeral is consequently placed to the stenotype of the first stem), in all cases except when the outline begins with, but does not entirely consist of, horizontal stems; for then the first upright or slanting stem is written in position, and the numeral moved forward to its stenotype; thus, K-P^1 (cap), K-P^3 (coop), K-B^3 (Cuba),  K-B^1-J (cabbage),  M-B^1-D (embody),  M-N-D^2 (moneyed),  K-B^3-K (cubic). Phonographers should be very particular to write every word in its proper position so that a habit of accuracy in this respect will be early formed; and, as those words whose outlines begin with horizontals but contain stems struck in other directions are the most difficult for the learner to master, the foregoing outline illustrations of the positions of such word-forms should be carefully studied.

To overcome certain practical obstacles that were unavoidable, a few words are arbitrarily written out of their proper positions, and the writer should be exceedingly careful to always place them in the positions assigned to them. These words should be practiced upon until their outlines and positions are thoroughly memorized. The following is a list of them with their stenotypes: Advantage, J^2;

Altogether, Gdhr^1; Another, Ndhr^1; Any, N^3; Do, D^2; For, F^2; Gentleman, Jnt^1; Go, G^1; He, H^2; Him, H^2; Other, Dhr^1; Over, Vr^1; Own, N^1; Truth, Tr^2; What, T^2, Which, CH^2.

When a word is pronounced in more than one way, if the difference is merely of accent, generally each accent is indicated by the position-numeral with which it corresponds, and but one outline is given; thus, "Àdver′tisement or Advertise′ment, D^2*or*^{1}-Vr-T-zMnt [D^2*or*^{1}-zMnt]." But if there is a difference in the consonant-sounds used, each outline is indicated; thus, "Asthma, St^1-M or S^1-M or Z^1-M."

When the outline of one word would be liable to conflict with that of another, without some special provision being made to avoid it, either in the form of the outline or through increased care in writing, attention is called to the fact of the confliction, and the provision against it, by a reference to such word. Thus, Above is written B^2-V, and not Bv^2, because B with the hook is used as an abbreviation for Before; therefore, after giving Above and its outline, the words, "See Before" are inserted. So after Before will be found "See Above."

In regard to verbs whose past tense and past participle are formed regularly, that is by the addition of -d or -ed to the present tense, the present tense only is given, and then follows its outline, and immediately after that the outlines of the past tense and participle and present participle; thus, "Move, M-V^3, M-Vd^3, M-V^3-NG"; "Brush, Br^2-SH, Br^2-SHt, Br^2-SH-NG"; "Look, L^{3}-K, L^{3}-K-T, L^{3}-K-NG." If the verb is irregular, only the outlines of the parts formed regularly are given, and theirregular parts are put in their alphabetical places like any other independent word; thus, "Break, Br^2-K, Br^2-K-NG", the word "Broke, Br^2-K" being inserted elsewhere. All the parts of a regular verb have their accent on the same vowel-sound, and so their three outlines belong to and are written in one and the same word-position. When the plurals of nouns are formed regularly, that is by the simple addition of an s or z sound to the singular number, the outlines of the plural forms are not given. But when plurals are formed irregularly, as wives, men, feet, children, etc., and the Latin plural forms, their outlines are given in their proper alphabetic places. When an adjective and its corresponding adverb are written with the same outline, the former is printed in full and the latter indicated by merely adding at the end -y or -ly, only one outline being indicated for both words; thus, "Able-y, Bl^2;" "Agreeable-y, Gr-Bl^3" "Regardful-ly, R^{1}-Grd-Fl."

Brackets are placed around stenotypes to indicate that they are abbreviated; that is, that they do not represent all of the consonants of words. In most instances the full outline is first given, and then follows the abbreviation in brackets; thus, "Because, B^1-Kz [Kz^1]," "Represent, R^{2}-Prz-Nt [R^{2}-P]." Sometimes an optional abbreviation for a part of a word is enclosed in brackets: thus, "Attainableness, Tn^2-B-L-Ns [: Bs]," means that the first and full outline may be used, or the outline "Tn^2 : Bs." The abbreviations for -fullness, -lessness, -iveness, etc., are indicated in a similar way.

In like manner marks of Parenthesis are placed around outlines that, although full—that is, representing all the consonants of a word—are especially brief; thus, "Return, R^{2}-T-*R*n (Rt^2-*R*n)." Sometimes marks of Parenthesis are used to enclose a part of an outline as the stenotypes of one or more stems, or of hooks, to indicate that it is optional with the writer whether he will use the enclosed signs or omit them; thus, "Explainable, Ks-Pln^2-B(-L)." Outlines enclosed in Parenthesis marks are generally optional, and in most cases are intended more especially for use by verbatim reporters.

Compound words generally follow the rule for phrase-writing; that is, the first word is written in its proper position, the other word being joined at the end. There are a few exceptions to this rule in cases where it is more important that the second word should be written in its proper position than the first.

It has been thought best not to cumber this Dictionary with lists of phrase-signs, so they have been only introduced sufficiently to show all the principles of Phraseography, and thus fulfill the design of indicating how each word of the language is written under any and all circumstances. See under the words, All, An, And, Are, Been, Have, I, It, Not, Of, Or, Other, Our, Own, Than, That, The, Their, There, Time, To, Was, We, Were, Will, Would and You-r.

Although the outline of any word may be ascertained by turning to it in the Dictionary, the necessity for such reference may be rendered less frequent by specially memorizing the following suggestions in regard to certain outlines and parts of outlines that characterize whole classes of words.

REM. 1. The following outlines for terminal syllables, unless the preceding part of the outline renders them impossible or difficult, are seldom if ever deviated from: -graphic, -Grf-K; -graphical-ly, -Gr-F-Kl; -ography, -Gr-F; -metric, Mtr-K; metrical-ly, -Mtr-Kl; -rior or -rier, R-R; -ror or -rer, -Rr; -ciously, -SHs-L; -nion or nian, n-hook followed by the stem N;—thus, Geographic, J^1-Grf-K; Geographical-ly, J^1-Gr-F-Kl; Geography, J^1-Gr-F; Geometric, J^2-Mtr-K; Geometrical-ly, J^2-Mtr-Kl; Anterior, N-T^3-R-R; Furrier, F^2-R-R; Bearer, B^1-Rr; Curer, K-Rr^3; Auspiciously, S^3-P-SHs-L; Graciously, Gr-SHs^2-L; Judiciously, Jd^3-SHs-L; Companion, : Pn^1-N; Demonian, D^2-Mn-N.

REM. 2. As there are two forms for the consonants dvr, namely, D-Vr and Dv-R(-R), in practice an important distinction is gained by using D-Vr in words commencing with vowels, such as Advert, D^2-Vrt; Adversity, D^2-Vrs-T; and Dv-R(-R) in such words as Divert, Dv^2-Rt; Diversity, Dv^2-*R*s-T.

REM. 3. The consonant l, whether followed by a vowel or not, when it comes after half-length N or NG, is generally written downward; and after half-length M or H it is written upward.

REM. 4. The termination -ingly is written -NGl or -NG-L (downward) according to which form is most convenient.

REM. 5. The dot for -ing, besides being used after outlines that join badly with the stem NG, and after abbreviated outlines, is generally employed after stems with final loops; thus, *R*st(·)^2, Resting; Mstr(·)^2, Mustering.

In a few cases where the letter n in the common spelling represents the sound of ng, for the purpose of securing better outlines, the n-hook is used to represent that sound; thus, Fn^2-Gs, fungus, instead of the outline F^2-NG-Gs.

Every experienced writer of Phonography, whether he uses it in reporting, in his correspondence, or for private purposes, prefers unvocalized outlines. For this reason the indication of full vocalization in a phonographic dictionary would be of little value. Therefore, except in a few instances where vocalization is specially needed, the signs of the vowels have been omitted entirely.

Although the vast majority of the word-forms of Phonography are exceedingly facile, so that even an unskilled hand is soon trained to make them with ease, still there are a few outlines that contain intrinsic difficulties to which it is necessary to call special attention. Thus, the junctions of M-Pt (mapped), M-Bd (mobbed, imbed), stM-Bt (steamboat) present difficulties which can only be obviated by bending in the final end of the curved stem, not so as to form a hook, but yet sufficiently to allow the straight half-length to join at a slight angle. When two stems of equal length, one curved and the other straight, join without an angle, as M-P, P-N, P-S, N-R, TH-P, P-NG, B-Z, etc., care must be taken to make each stem of the combination as exact as possible, so that if either is covered the other will be as perfect as if it stood alone. It is a good plan for phonographers to make lists of all forms or outlines that they find difficult to write, and then during leisure moments to give them special practice until they cease to be troublesome.

The stenotypic method of indicating phonographic outlines employed in this Dictionary, which is almost entirely the invention of the author, is the most simple and perfect means ever devised for the purpose. It is better than a nomenclature because it is more compact, and also presents a picture more nearly like the shorthand signs themselves; so that, in a mere book of reference like this, it answers the purpose of engraving and enables the author to present great results at a trifling cost to the public.

The first three and the most important questions that the writer of Phonography wishes information upon in regard to any word, are, first, What is its consonant outline?—second, Which is its accented vowel?—and third, In which of the three word-positions does the accented vowel place that outline? These questions the author has answered in regard to each word of the language, by giving, first, the word with its accented syllable properly marked; second, the stenotypes of the full outline, and, third, the figure indicating its position. In these important respects this Dictionary is superior to any other work of the kind ever published.

The perfect adaptation to its purpose of the Stenotypy here employed is also evidenced by the fact that the stenotypic part of this book was actually set up by the compositors from phonographic copy. The author is indebted to Messrs. James J. Williamson, Richard Harris and Samuel B. Benn, the phonographic compositors, for the accuracy of their work, and the patient perseverence with which they have adhered to this long and oftentimes wearisome task of making a practical phonographic dictionary of the entire language.

The Dictionary of Proper Names at the end is an entirely new selection, having been compiled by the author from a large number of independent lists of names, both biographical and geographical. Several Directories have been used, and special effort has been made to adapt this part of the work to the particular wants of people in this country, by giving preference to American names.

THE
PRACTICAL PHONOGRAPHY.

A.

A, the first letter of the Alphabet, is used to represent eight distinct vowel sounds, as heard in *f*ate, f*a*r, f*a*t, f*a*re, *a*sk, *a*ll, w*a*sp and m*a*ny. In the complete or extended phonographic vowel-scale a separate sign is given to each of these sounds; but in the scale ordinarily used a few slight shades of difference in sound are not marked, and these eight vowels are written as indicated below:

a in fate—heavy second-place dot.

a in fat, fare and ask—light first-place dot.

a in arm—heavy first-place dot.

a in all—heavy first-place dash.

a in wasp—light first-place dash.

a in many—light second-place dot.

A. The word a is written as follows:

1. By a dot on the line, which may be made light except when the word is unusually emphasized. To more perfectly distinguish a from the, the dot for a may be placed slightly above the line.

2. At the commencement of phrases, by a tick struck invariably in the direction of the stem P.

3. In the middle or at the end of phrases, by a tick struck in the direction of either P or CH, according to which gives the best junction.

The dot sign is always preferable when the tick-sign makes an obtuse angle with the stem to which it is joined.

An, N^1. The article an is written as follows:

1. By a light dot above the line (first position).

2. At the commencement of phrases, by a tick struck invariably in the direction of the stem P.

3. In the middle or at the end of phrases, by a tick struck in the direction of either P or CH, according to which gives the best junction. See A and And.

4. By the n-hook, as in the following phrases:

By an, Bn^1
At an, Tn^1
If an, Fn^3
Of an, Vn^1
From an, Mn^1
On an, Nn^1

Are. The word Are is written as follows:

1. Standing alone or commencing phrases, by R^{1}, thus,

Are, R^{1}
Are they, R^{1}-DH
Are all, *R*l^1
Are our, *R*r^1
Are we, *R*w^1
Are you, *R*y^1
Are of, *R*v^1
Are there, *R*dhr^1
Are the, *R*t^1

2. In the middle or at the end of phrases (when mode 3. or 4. cannot be employed), by R; thus,

There are, DHr^1-R
There are many,—DHr^1-R-M-N
Many are, M^2-N-R
So there are, Sdhr^2-R

See Were.

3. By the r-hook; thus,

What are, Tr^2
They are, DHr^2
We are, Wr^3
You are, Yr^3

4. With preceding they, by lengthening principle, or large loop; thus,

If they are, Fdhr^3
So they are, Sdhr^2
Though they are,—DHdhr^2
Because they are,—Kzdhr^1
Unless they are,—Nlsdhr^2

B.

B, the second letter of the Alphabet, invariably represents the sound of b, as heard in *b*e, *b*y, ro*b*. etc.

Bb, like other doubled letters, has the one sound of the single letter, as in ro*bb*ed, na*bb*ed, etc.; the added letter not being sounded, but placed there generally as a mere conventional index to show that the preceding vowel has its short sound. In Phonography no such expedient is required, and therefore only one phonographic sign is used to represent such doubled letters.

B is sometimes silent, as in de*b*t, dou*b*t, lam*b*, *b*dellium, etc., in which case it is not indicated in Phonography.

Byzan′tine or Byz′antine, Bz^1*or*^{3}-N-Tn

C.

C, the third letter of the Alphabet, like q and x, has no sound of its own, and therefore has no sign appropriated to it in Phonography. It sounds like k in *c*an, like s in *c*ell. like z in suffi*c*e, and (with following e or i) like sh in o*c*ean, commer*c*ial, etc.

Cc, before a, o and u, have the one sound of k, as in ba*cc*ate, a*cc*ount, a*cc*use; but, before e and i, they have the two sounds of k and s, as in a*cc*ede, a*cc*ident. See Bb.

C is sometimes silent, as in indi*c*t. See silent b.

Com- The syllables com, con, cum, whether at the commencement or in the middle of words, and cog in the middle of words, are generally not written but indicated by proximity, that is, by writing the part of the outline that comes after the omitted syllable near the part that precedes it.

When, however, proximity cannot be used, as at the beginning of a paragraph, sentence or line, or when any indistinctness would be occasioned by it, either of these syllables, except cog, may be written with a light dot, placed near the beginning of the succeeding part of the outline.

Initial cog- is always written K-G.

The reporter sometimes omits the syllable entirely, as with some words beginning with circum-, simply joining the first and latter parts of the outline.

K, for could, is not joined in phrases, except initially. Could, if joined to a preceding word, is written Kd; thus,

It could, T^3-Kd
It could not, T^3-Kd-Nt
If he could F^3-H-Kd

D.

D, the fourth letter of the Alphabet, generally represents the sound of d, as heard in the words *d*ay, *d*ue, ba*d*, did, etc. In the termination of the past tense of verbs, -ed, when the e is silent, d, after breath consonants, has the sound of t, and is so written in Phonography, as in rappe*d*, matche*d*, locke*d*, quaffe*d*, passe*d*, rushe*d*, etc.; but in such termination, after sonant consonants, and when the e is sounded, the d retains its proper sound; as in robbe*d*, lagge*d*, starte*d*, etc.

Before a palatal vowel d sometimes has the sound of j, as in sol*d*ier, ver*d*ure.

The compound dg also sometimes has the sound of j, as in ju*dg*e, ju*dg*ment, bri*dg*e.

Dd, except in compounds, is equivalent to d, as in a*dd*, o*dd*, e*dd*y, ru*dd*y. See Bb.

D is silent in We*d*nesday, and a few other words.

E.

E, the fifth letter of the Alphabet, is commonly used to represent two distinct vowel-sounds, as heard in mete and met, being sounds that are not at all related. In Phonography these sounds are written as follows:

e in mete—heavy third-place dot.

e in met—light second-place dot.

The letter e has a few anomalous sounds, as in the words pretty (prĭtty), clerk (clark, according to the English pronunciation), there (thâre), etc.

Ee generally has the sound of ē.

Ea has a variety of sounds, as in m*ea*l (ē), gr*ea*t (ā), h*ea*rt (â), guin*ea* (ĭ), h*ea*d (ĕ) and r*ea*ct (ēă). Of course the phonographic vowel-sign is different for each of these sounds.

Ey has generally the sound of ā, as in th*ey*, pr*ey*, etc.

E final is generally silent, only serving to indicate that the preceding vowel has its long sound, as in mate, note, etc.

G.

G, the seventh letter of the Alphabet, has two sounds, namely, its own proper sound, as in *g*ay, and that of j, as in *g*em. Before a, o, u, l, and r, g has its own sound, as in *g*ame, *g*o, *g*ull, *g*lad, *g*row, etc.; and then its proper phonographic sign is Gay. Before e, i, and y, g sometimes has its own sound, as in *g*et, *g*ill (the respiratory organ in a fish), etc.; but it more frequently in such cases has the sound of j, as in *g*em, *g*ill (the fourth part of a pint), *g*yve, etc.; and then its proper phonographic sign is Jay.

Gg has the sound of single g. See Bb.

Gh, at the beginning of words, has the sound of simple g, as in *gh*ost, *gh*astly, etc. In the middle or at the end of words, it has various sounds.

G, before n, at the beginning of words, is silent, as in *g*nat, *g*naw. See silent b.

H.

H, the eighth letter of the Alphabet, represents the rough or forcible breathing heard at the beginning of such words as *h*ate, *h*eat, *h*ope, *h*ave, *h*ome, etc.

H is frequently silent, as in *h*erb, *h*our, *h*eir, etc.

In Phonography h is usually written with the stem Hay; bnt before Pee and Bee, with simple beginning (that is, without initial hooks, circles or loops), and in the middle of words, when the outline can be shortened or improved thereby, the h is either omitted or written by a dot placed before the following vowel.

The compound Wh may be considered as either Hw or Wh. In Hw, when it is necessary to express the h at all, it is written by a small perpendicular tick at the commencement of the Way. In Wh the dot sign is used, following the Way and before the succeeding vowel.

I.

I, the ninth letter of the Alphabet, is used to represent four vowel-sounds, as heard in p*i*ke, p*i*ck, p*i*que and s*i*r. These sounds are written in Phonography as follows:

i in p*i*ke—v-shaped diphthong-sign in the first position.

i in p*i*ck—light third-place dot.

i in p*i*que—heavy third-place dot.

i in s*i*r—light second-place dash.

Note.—As commonly pronounced, there is no difference in the sound of the vowels heard in sir, dirt, pert, curb, her, hurt, fir, fur, etc., and they should, therefore, be written with the same sign.

When the diphthong-sound of i is initial, as in ice, eyed, ire, Ike, etc., the sign may be joined, when convenient, to the first stem of the word.

The pronoun I is always written with a short tick, slanting invariably to the right. (See tick-sign for a). When standing alone it is invariably written upward. When joined to a following Pee, Bee, Tee, Dee, Chay, Jay, Ef, Vee, Ith, Dhee, En, Ing or Yay, the tick is struck upward in the direction of Ree. When joined to a following Kay, Gay, Ess, Zee, Ish, Zhee, Lee, Er, Ree, Em, Way or Hay, it is struck downward in the direction of Chay. However, before can, could, cannot and could not, the upward tick is used to prevent conflict between the phrases I can and I am, I cannot and I am not, I could not and I mean to.

The phrase I have is written with the downward tick with the v-hook, and I will with the upward tick with the l-hook. If care be taken to always write the downward tick with the same slant as Chay, and the upward tick with the slant of Ree, and to make the hooks on them shorter than the ticks, the signs for these phrases will never become confused.

This abbreviated form of the sign for the pronoun I is also used, in single words, before Em and Lee, as in iambus, isle, island, etc.

Note.—When, in the common English spelling, a negative is formed by prefixing another syllable which repeats the first consonant of the positive word, as in the words moderate—*im*moderate, necessary—*un*necessary, legal—*il*legal, rational—*ir*rational, it becomes necessary in Phonography to write an additional consonant in order to prevent conflict between the outlines of the positive and negative words. This is done in the cases of m and n by prefixing an M or N stem, and in the cases of l and r, by the l or r-hook. See words beginning with ill- and with irr-.

Is, z^{3}

Note.—Is is added as follows:—to another small circle, whether following or preceding it, by making the circle large. (Among the examples below, see Is as, As is, Is seen.)—to a following the, it or to, by making the circle into a small loop. (See Is the or to, What is the.)—to a following there or their, by making the circle into a large loop. (See Is there, What is there,)—and to a preceding large circle, or to a loop whether large or small, by turning a small circle within it. (See As it is, As there is, Because there is.

Examples:—

Is as

As is

Is seen

Is the or Is to

What is the

Is there

What is there

As it is

As there is

Because there is

The circles and loops when standing alone are always made by a motion from the right over to the left: and both circles and loops should be commenced at the top.

K.

K, the eleventh letter of the Alphabet, invariably represents the sound of k, as heard in *k*eel, *k*ind, *k*ing, etc.

K, at the beginning of words, before n, is silent, as in *k*nack, *k*new, *k*now, etc.

In the common spelling c is often used to represent the sound of k; as in cane, came, cool, cap, etc.

In many words ch has the sound of k; as in *ch*aos, *ch*ord, *ch*asm, etc.

L.

L, the twelfth letter of the Alphabet, always represents the sound of l as heard in *l*ay, *l*ay, fee*l*, etc.

Ll, like other double letters, generally has the sound of single l, as in fa*ll*, ca*ll*, fu*ll*y, *Ll*ama, etc. See remarks under Bb and Illaudable.

L is sometimes silent, as in ta*l*k, wa*l*k, etc.

M.

M, the thirteenth letter of the Alphabet, represents the sound of m as heard in *m*ay, *m*y, hi*m*, etc. In proper English words m is never silent.

Mm, especially when occurring after an accented short-vowel, usually has the sound of single m, as in ha*mm*er, di*mm*er, pu*m*mel, la*mm*, etc.

N.

N, the fourteenth letter of the Alphabet, represents the sound of n as heard in *n*o, *n*ew, me*n*, ru*n*, etc.

Nn generally has the sound of single n, as in ba*nn*er, ru*nn*er, fu*nn*el, i*nn*, bu*nn*, etc. See Bb.

Ng is the usual representative of the single gutteral nasal sound ng as heard in sa*ng*, ru*ng*, lo*ng*, su*ng*, etc. When occurring before k or g (sounded as Gay), n generally has the sound of NG. as in ba*n*k (băngk), li*n*k (lĭngk), lo*n*ger (long-ger), fi*n*ger (fĭng-ger). In the words ha*ng*er, sli*ng*er, ri*ng*er, bri*ng*er and spri*ng*er ng is sounded as the single sound of the phonographic letter NG. Compare anger with hanger and linger with singer.

O.

O, the fifteenth letter of the Alphabet, is used to represent six distinct vowel-sounds, as heard in n*o*te, n*o*t, d*o*ne, f*o*rm, m*o*ve, w*o*lf. The sounds are written in Phonography as follows:

o in n*o*te—heavy second place dash.

o in n*o*t—light first place dash.

o in d*o*ne—light second place dash.

o in *o*r—heavy first place dash.

o in m*o*ve—heavy third place dash.

o in w*o*lf—light third place dash.

Oo, in the same syllable, generally has the sound represented by the heavy third place dash, as in b*oo*t, or by the light third place dash, as in f*oo*t. In d*oo*r, fl*oo*r, etc., oo has the sound of ō.

O (interj.), by the vowel-sign for ō in the second position, with direction of J.

Note.—For words commencing with Œ see the same under E.

Of (ov), is indicated as follows:

1. By V^{1}, which is used—

   a. When of begins a sentence or line;

   b. Always instead of proximity before words beginning with com- or con-, and

   c. Generally before words that may be written by any hook. modification or attachment of V; thus,

      Of all. Vl^{1}
      Of all their, Vldhr^{1}
      Of all the, Vlt^{1}
      Of our, Vr^{1}
      Of an, Vn^{1}
      Of another, Vndhr^{1}
      Of their, Vdhr^{1}
      Of it or the, Vt^{1}
      Of its, Vts^{1}
      Of his, Vz^{1}
      Of a, V^{1} with the a tick.

2. By the v-hook; thus:

      Part of, Pv^{1}
      Out of, Tv^{1}
      Charge of, CHv^{1}
      Which of. CHv^{2}
      Each of, CHv^{3}
      Back of, B^{1}-Kv

3. By proximity—that is, by omitting the of and writing the two words between which it occurs near each other. Proximity should not be used when one or both of the adjoining words are written with a dot, tick or circle sign. In general, it should not be employed when it will occasion the slightest indistinctness. When in doubt use the stem V.

Oth'er, DHr^1. Written in the first position to avoid collision with Their.

In many instances Other would conflict with Their if written in the same way. But after most adjectives, and nouns and pronouns in the possessive case, Their rarely or never occurs; therefore Other may be written in such cases by the same outline as Their; as follows:

1. By lengthening the stem of the preceeding word; thus,

These other, Zdhr^3
That other, DHdhr^1
The other, DHdhr^3
Every other, Vrdhr^2
One other, Wndhr^3
No other, Ndhr^2
Many other, M^2-Ndhr
Some other, sMdhr^2
My other, Mdhr^1
Your other, Ydhr^3
Their other, DHrdhr^2
Her other, Rdhr^2
Been other, Bndhr^2

2. By the dhr-hook on straight stems; thus,

Each other, CHdhr^3
Such other, sCHdhr^2
Our other, *R*dhr^1

3. By changing the preceding s-circle to a large loop; thus,

Those other, DHzdhr^2
This other, DHsdhr^3
John's other, Jnzdhr^1
Boy's other, Bzdhr^1
James' other, J^2-Mzdhr
Whose other, Hzdhr^3
His other, zdhr^3—detached large loop, leaning to the right, in third position.

There are a few exceptions to the above rule; thus, All other should be vocalized with the second place short dash, thus; *L*ŭdhr^1. And, on the other hand, Or other is safely written Rdhr^1 without the vowel sign.

The word Their has the first right to be written with the dhr outlines, and generally after words where Their might occur, if the same form be used for Other, the sign of the short-vowel ŭ should be inserted; thus,

Of other, Vŭdhr^1
Shall other, SHŭdhr^1
By other, Bŭdhr^1
But other, Bŭdhr^2
When other, Wŭdhr^2
In other, Nŭdhr^3

P.

P, the sixteenth letter of the Alphabet, represents usually the sound of p as heard in the words *p*ay, *p*ie, ca*p*, ro*p*e, etc.

P is the most perfect of all the consonants and it is therefore placed at the head of the phonographic alphabet.

Pp has the sonnd of single p, as in ra*pp*ed, ni*pp*ed, etc. See Bb.

Ph has the sonnd of f, as in *ph*antom, *ph*ase, *ph*onogra*ph*y, etc.

P is silent in the initial combinations pn and pt, as in *pn*eumatics, *pn*eumonia, *pt*armigan, *Pt*olemy, etc.

In phth ph is silent, as in *phth*isic (tĭzĭc), *phth*ongometer (thŏngŏmeter), etc.

Q.

Q, the seventeenth letter of the Alphabet, like c, is a superfluous letter, as it has no sound of its own, but is sounded invariably like Kay. It is always followed by u, and the two letters, except in a few words in which the u is silent, have the sound of kw, as heard in *qu*een, *qu*ail, *qu*ick, etc.

The phonograph Kway (Kay with w-hook) is the proper sign for qu.

R.

R, the eighteenth letter of the Alphabet, has the sound of initial-r as heard in *r*ap, *r*ob, *r*ow, and of final-r as heard in fa*r*, ca*r*e, mo*r*e, bu*rr*. Initial-r differs from final-r chiefly in being made with a complete contact of the tongue and the palate, while in sounding the latter there is simply a lifting of the tongue towards the palate, without touching it.

Students beginning Phonography are apt to omit the r from such words as par, far, farm, etc. In all such words the sign for r should be inserted.

R is the only letter of the Alphabet for which Phonography provides two stems, viz., Ree and Er. Ree is generally used for initial-r and Er for final-r. There are some exceptions to this rule: Before M and H, without initial hooks or circles, Er is used initially, as in *r*oam, *r*ehash etc.; and, occasionally, when a better outline is secured thereby, Ree is used finally, as in *R*v^3-R, Rive*r*.

Rh, at the beginning of words, has the sound of simple r, as in *rh*etoric, *rh*yme, etc.

Rr, after short vowels, generally has the sound of single r, as heard in ca*rr*y, me*rr*y, mi*rr*or, etc.

S.

S, the ninteenth letter of the Alphabet, has the sound of S in *s*ee, *s*at, thu*s*; of Z in ro*s*e, mu*s*e, and of ZH in u*s*ual, plea*s*ure, etc.

Ss has the sound of single s, as heard in ma*ss*, la*ss*, ma*ss*ive, etc.

In isle, viscount, and a few other words, s is silent.

SH is a digraph that is usually employed in the common spelling to represent the single sound of the phonograph Ish.

In English orthography s is more frequently used than z even for the sound of Z.

In Phonography both the s and z sounds are oftener written with the circles and loops than with their stem signs.

Self, s*L*^{2}-F. See Selves.

Note.—Self as a prefix is usually written with the s-circle placed invariably on the line. This prefix may be joined to the remainder of the outline if it commences with a down-stroke and it does not need to be written in its proper position for the sake of legibility. If the remainder of the outline commences with an up-stroke a horizontal or a circle or loop, the prefix should not be joined but placed at the left and close to it.

Self-con- is written by placing the prefix sign (s-circle) in the first position; and then the remainder of the outline is written close to it.

The s-circle is also used sometimes as a suffix for -self.

T.

T, the twentieth letter of the Alphabet, has the sound of T in *t*ie, *t*oy, ma*t*, etc.

Tt usually has the sound of single t, as in ma*tt*ed, pe*tt*ed, etc.

Th is a digraph that is employed in the ordinary orthography to represent the two simple consonant sounds heard at the beginning of the words *th*igh and *th*y. The difference between these two sounds of th is exactly the same as the difference between the sounds of f and v, of s and z, etc. In Anglo-saxon each of these sounds had a letter of its own.

Ti, following an accented syllable not ending with an s-sound, generally has the sound of SH, as in sta*ti*on, pa*ti*ent, etc. But if an s-sound precedes the ti, the two letters take the sound of ch, as in ques*ti*on.

T is silent in the termination ten and tle after s and f, as in fas*t*en, has*t*en, cas*t*le, of*t*en, sof*t*en, etc. It is also silent in ches*t*nut, Chris*t*mas, mor*t*gage, etc.

  That are, DHr^1
  That there, DHdhr^1
  That the, DHt^1
  That is, DHz^1
  That is the, DHzt^1

The, DH^3. The is written as follows:

1. By a dot in the third position — usually made light, but heavy when the word is emphasized.

2. By halving the preceding stem; thus,
  By the, Bt^1
  But the. Bt^2
  At the, Tt^1
  To the, Tt^3
  Of the, Vt^1
  From the, Mt^1
  On the, Nt^1
  In the, Nt^3
  Yet the, Yt^2
  Back of the. B^1-Kvt
  Become of the, B^2-Kvt
  On the part of the, Nt^1-Pvt
  For the sake of the, Ft^1-sKvt

3. By changing the preceding s-circle to a small loop; thus,
  Does the. Dzt^2
  What is the, Tzt^2
  So is the, Szt^2
  Where is the, *R*zt^2

4. By a perpendicular tick, joined finally, when the 2d and 3d modes of writing The will not apply; thus,
  After the. Ftr^1-(perpendicular tick)
  Whether the, Wdhr^2-(horizontal tick)
  Not the, Nt^1-(perpendicular tick)

Note.—The tick-sign for The is not used initially, the dot-sign being preferable in such cases.

Their, DHr^2. Either Their or There is also written as follows:

1. By lengthening the stem of the preceding word; thus,
For their, Fdhr^2
If there or their, Fdhr^3
Of their, Vdhr^1
Have their, Vdhr^1
That there, DHdhr^1

Had there, Ddhr^1
Which there, CHdhr^2
Can there, Kdhr^1

Time, (n.) T^1-M [M^1]. The following is the rule for writing this word:

1. Generally in phrases Time is written in full; thus

This time, DHs^3-T-M
At that time, T^1-DHt-T-M
Any time, N^3-T-M
Night time, Nt^1-T-M
Another time, Ndhr^1-T-M
For the time, Ft^2-T-M
First time, Fs^2-T-M
Several times, sV^2-T-Mz
Many times, M^2-N-T-Mz

2. In a few cases it is written by halving the preceding stem and then adding M; thus,

Had time, Dt^1-M
Same time, sMt^2-M
Day time, Dt^2-M

3. The abbreviation, M, may generally be used in phrases after a stem that has been shortened to add The; thus.

At the time, Tt^1-M
During the time, Drt^3-M
From the time, Mt^1-M
Part of the time, Pvt^1-M
To the time, Tt^3-M

4. If the full outline is employed, not connected with any other outline, it should be vocalized to distinguish it from T^1-M, Autumn; which latter word is never joined in phrases.

1. By T^3

2. By halving the stem of the preceding word; thus,

Ought to, Tt^1
Had to, Dt^1
Able to, Blt^2
Began to, Gnt^1
Endeavor to, N-Dvt^2

3. By changing the preceding s-circle to a small loop; thus,

Hopes to, Pst^2
Choose to, CHzt^3
Goes to, Gzt^1
Shows to, SHzt^2
Vows to, Vzt^1
Likes to, L^{1}-Kst
Seems to, sMzt^3

4. By dropping the form of the succeeding word one-half the length of a T below the third position of the same form. This is called the Fourth Position.

U.

U, the twenty-first letter of the Alphabet, is used to represent the two simple vowel-sounds heard in c*u*t, b*u*t, f*u*ll, b*u*ll, the diphthong sound heard in t*u*be, c*u*te, c*u*re, and, at the beginning of some words, the sounds of the consonant y and ọ, as heard in *u*se (yọs). *u*sual (yọ'zhọal). These sounds are written in Phonography as follows;

u in c*u*t—light second-place dash.

u in f*u*ll—light third-place dash.

u in t*u*be—v-shaped diphthong-sign opening to the right.

u in *u*se—the stem Y and heavy (but in unaccented syllables, light) third-place dash.

Un- is a negative prefix that enters into the composition of a vast number of words; but, as in most instances their outlines are the same as those of the primitive words, with merely an N-stem prefixed, it would be a waste of space to attempt to give them all in this place. As a rule words only are given that are in frequent use, and those whose outlines vary from the outlines of the primitive words. In the case of words not found here, their outlines may be ascertained by looking up the words without the un and then prefixing an N-stem to their outlines.

W.

W, the twenty-third letter of the Alphabet, has both a consonant and a vowel sound. At the beginning of words and syllables it has the consonant-sound of w as heard in *w*ade. *w*ood. *w*eed, be*w*ail, etc.; and at the end of syllables it has the vowel-sound of oo as heard in no*w*, ne*w*, etc. By some phoneticians at the present time, and in the earlier works on Phonography, w is treated as always having the vowel-sound of oo; but by carefully and slowly pronouncing the word w-oo, the difference between the consonant w and the vowel oo will be apparent.

W is silent before r at the beginning of words and syllables and in the words ans*w*er, s*w*ord, t*w*o, gun*w*ale, boats*w*ain. etc.

The difficulty of joining a number of the stems to a preceding Way makes it desirable, in the case of a few words, to employ an additional sign for w. The one adopted is a small semicircle, which may be turned in any direction in order to secure easy joinings. Before T, D, TH, DH, SH and ZH it is best made with the opening to the right, and before K, with the opening to the left. This sign is also generally used before D for wd, the half-length W being used principally for wt. See Wash, Wish, Wake, Wed, Wet, etc.

Z.

Z, the twenty-sixth and last letter of the Alphabet, generally has the sound of z in *z*est, *z*inc, *z*one, etc. In a few words it takes the sound of ZH, as in sei*z*ure. Its mate, s, in the common orthography, is more frequently used to represent the z-sound than the letter z itself.

ZH is generally used in works on pronunciation to indicate the sound of the phonograph Zhee.

Note.—In writing names beginning with O', the sign for the word Oh, when it will make a good junction, may be joined initially to the first stem of the word; in all other cases write the O' with the ō dash as in ordinary vocalization. In the following outlines, when the ō is joined it is connected by a hyphen. See O'Conor.

APPENDIX

REVISED OUTLINES.

A.

A. The word a is written as follows:

1. By a light dot just above the line (in second position).

2. By the breve Poid, which is always struck downward when beginning a phrase, and usually, though not always, when joined after another word, as in the phrases:

- A great deal, Poid-Grt^2-Dl
- A little, Poid-Lt^{3}-L
- A man, Poid-Mn^1
- Where a, R^{2}-Poid
- On a, N^1-Poid
- At a, T^1-Up-Poid (S. C., par. 163)
- And a, Poid-Up-Poid (Rem. under 163)

A., as an initial of proper names, is written with a heavy dot just above the line (in second position).

All words commencing with hyper- take this form.

Hy'phen, Koid-Fn^{1}

Hyp'notize, hĭP^{3}-N-Tz, hĭP^{3}-N-Tzd, hĭP^{3}-N-Tz-NG

Note. — When h is written with a light dot placed near the succeeding vowel in such words as hap, heap, hypnotize, hope, hub, unhappy, New Haven, etc. (S. C., par. 123), the proper stenograph for the combination of the aspirate and the vowel is h and the vowel letter; thus, hă, hē, hĭ, hō, hŭ, hā, etc.

Hy'po-, ɪ-P or hĭP, according to which sound of i is heard in the word. (S. C. pars. 83 and 123.)

Hypoder'mic, ɪ-P^2-Dr-M-K

Hy'son, Hsn^1

I.

I, the pronoun, standing alone, is written with breve Roid^1. In phrases it is written with either Roid or Choid, according to which makes the best junction. But before can and could Roid and not Choid is used. S. C., 137, 162, 167. Examples:

I do, Roid-D^2
I did not, Roid-Dnt^3
I think, Roid-TH^3
I am, Choid-M^1
I was, Choid-Z^1
I can, Roid-K^1
I could not, Roid-Knt^3

I., as an initial of proper names, is written with the full diphthong sign in the first position.

Self, s*L*^{2}-F. See Selves.

Note.—Self at the beginning of words is usually written with the s-circle invariably placed on the line, the rest of the outline being detached and placed close after it and in its own proper position.

Self-com or self-con. When the second part of the word commences with com or con, usually represented by a dot, it is not necessary in practice to write the dot.

Self at the end of words is written sometimes with the full outline, s*L*-F, sometimes with the s-circle joined, and occasionally with the s-circle detached and placed on the line close to the preceding part of the outline.

The note under Self on page 237 is obsolete.

The, standing alone, is written with a light dot just below the line (in the third position). At the end or in the middle of phrases, but never at the beginning, the may be written with either Thoid or Roid. The may also be indicated by the Halving Principle. S. C., pars. 136, 164, 270. Examples:

But the, B^2-Choid
All the, L^{1}-Roid or *L*t^1
For the, F^2-Choid or Ft^2
Where the, R^{2}-Choid
It is the, Tz^3-Choid
Where is the, *R*z^2-Choid
When the, Thoid^2-Choid
To the, Tt^3

Their, DHr^2. Written in the second position to avoid conflict with other, which is written in the first position. In phrases either their or there may be written with the Ther-hook, the Lengthening Principle, or by changing breve-s to breve-ster. S. C., pars. 209, 231, 271, 310. Examples:

At their, Tdhr^1
Were there, *R*dhr^3
By their, Bdhr^1
Had there, Ddhr^1
On their, Ndhr^1
Was there, Zdhr^1
Known their, Nndhr^2
